MELLON IS EXPECTED TO URGE VETO
OF TAX BILL

Officials Say Secretary Considers Measure "Very Unfortunate Piece of Legislation."

OPPOSES PUBLICITY
OF TAX HEARINGS

Believes Estate Rates Will Reduce Revenue and That Fiscal Program
Would Be Endangered.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, May 22.—Strong indications were given at the Treasury today that Secretary Mellon will recommend a veto of the tax bill by the President when the measure is submitted to the Treasury for consideration and review.
The House and Senate conferees yesterday agreed on a compromise bill.

High officials declared the bill to be "very unsatisfactory" to Mellon and the statement was made that he viewed it as a "most unfortunate piece of legislation."

He believes all the provisions for reform of the tax system have been omitted and finds no justification for inclusion of such provisions as increased estate tax rates.

Fears Injury to Credit.
The Secretary also feels that the sections making income tax returns available to certain committees of Congress and opening to the public the proceedings of the Board of Tax Review will have harmful effects on business, working to increase credit and divulge trade secrets to competitors.

The estate tax rates as now carried by the bill are expected by Treasury experts to result in lowered production of revenue instead of an increase. They base this belief on indications that large fortunes will be distributed by their owners in advance of death and the Government therefore will obtain little if any, tax on that part of the estate remaining intact.

Because of the deficit that the Treasury foresees under the measure, the Secretary takes the position that the reduced income would program for the Treasury. New funding arrangements for the outstanding debt would be required, in his opinion, as well as increased issues of securities to take care of current requirements when receipts begin to come in under the bill.

Enactment of a law that would result in a Treasury deficit, even for one year, is held by Mellon to be a reversal of a well-established national policy, certain to produce ill effects on future fiscal programs.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS
WANT PRESIDENT TO SIGN TAX BILL

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.
WASHINGTON, May 22.—The Conference Committee on tax reduction bill has reported an agreement on a compromise proposal which reduces the Federal revenue approximately $450,000,000.

As already outlined in the Post-Dispatch the compromise calls for the elimination of such features as the Jones graduated corporation tax, the Norris publicity feature and some other items and holds to the traditional or Democratic normal income and surtax rates.

Contrary to expectations, neither the rates nor the brackets to which they apply were modified, with the result that the bill is a disappointment to the administration.

Whether the President will sign the bill is problematical. The question is now fairly up to the White House, as it is expected the conference report will be approved by both Senate and House. It is intimated in well-informed quarters that the President is in doubt as to his decision, with many chances for a veto.

Republican leaders in both Senate and House expressed the belief the President would sign the bill, holding to the opinion that it would be better politics. The conference report is signed by the Republican members of the Conference Committee, so the President is heretofore at the outset of Congressional leadership in supporting a veto.

However, it is acknowledged that Republican Senators and Representatives are not desirous of forcing

WIVES OF LABOR MEMBERS DISPLAY
MUCH JEWELRY

London Press Sarcastic in Comments on Strings of Pearls and Jeweled Belts.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1924.)
LONDON, May 22.—The grumbling among a section of the Labor party over the joyful alacrity with which Labor leaders and their wives don finery and shine at court functions increases and tomorrow the Daily Herald, official Labor organ, sarcastically although most guardedly, criticizes Mrs. Philip Snowden, wife of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who went to court last night attired in a gown which she described as being "as simple as possible," but which observers thought most ostentatious.

Mrs. Snowden's attire included a string of pearls, a jeweled belt and a magnificent white ostrich feather fan mounted on sticks of tortoise shell. Mrs. Snowden, in an article in the Evening Standard, says:
"The general note was one of quietness. The dresses had been simply made. The general tone was refined and dignified and at the same time very lovely."

But the Labor Puritans are objecting to their leaders partaking of these frivolities. The Daily Herald's tone toward Lord High Commissioner "Jamie" Brown, the King's proxy at Holyrood, standing on a golden throne in a scarlet coat and blue trousers trimmed with silver braid, is one of disapproval, and when the paper contemplates Labor miners and their wives who wear the glassest rags possible at Buckingham, it feels "impatient contempt for such misuse of official life."

ANTI K. K. K. PLANK REJECTED

Indiana Republicans for Watson for Vice Presidency.

By the Associated Press.
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 22.— Indiana Republicans in State convention today decided to select 14 delegates at large to the national convention, each with half a vote.
The Indiana delegation to vote for Senator James E. Watson for the vice presidential nomination as long as his name is before the convention.
Rejecting a plank against the Ku Klux Klan, the resolution committee incorporated under its State administration plank a declaration for just enforcement of all laws "without prejudice to race, color or creed." The committee's platform was adopted.

they had rented that portion of the farm to strangers who had in-

300 HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS STRIKE
IN UNIVERSITY CITY

Short-Lived Walkout Over Failure of School Board To Reappoint J. E. Baker as Principal.

PARADE IS HELD THROUGH SUBURB

Boys and Girls Return to Their Classes After Marching Through Streets Carrying Banners.

Three hundred or more boy and girl students of the University City High School went on a short-lived strike this morning and held a parade through the suburb in protest at the failure of the School Board to reappoint James E. Baker as high school principal for the next school year.

The board voted last Monday night not to reappoint Baker, who has been popular with students and parents. Tuesday night the Central Parent-Teachers' Association adopted a resolution for investigation by a committee of the reasons for not reappointing Baker.
Discussion of the subject spread among University City residents.

The discussion was taken up by the pupils of the high school, which has an enrollment of about 250. Yesterday noon they talked of a "walkout" from school, but the principal suggested to them if they wanted to show their sympathy for him that would be a bad way, because it would look as though he had no control over them. Accordingly the plan to act within the school was dropped, but word to assemble outside the building this morning was passed from mouth to mouth.

Carry Painted Signs.
They began gathering on Harvard avenue, north of Delmar boulevard and near the high school, at 8:30 a. m. This is near the Delmar car loop, where many interested persons looked on. There were about a dozen painted paper-and-wood signs in students' hands.

The largest, for Principal "James E. Baker," was carried at the head of the subsequent parade.

Other signs were:
"Unfair School Board Ousts Principal Baker for University City—U. C. for Baker."
"We Students Want James E.
Baker Given a Fair Chance."

Superintendent H. M. Buckley, who has resigned to take a position in the Cleveland schools in the autumn, looked on as the parade formed, and cautioned the strikers not to enter school grounds.
Teachers watched from school windows and none was seen to frown.
No students appeared for classes in the first periods.

Cheers for Principal.
At 9 o'clock the boys and girls began their march without disorder in the ranks, and without apparent leaders. Girls seemed to outnumber boys. A few grade school pupils joined the line out of curiosity. The route lay east on Delmar boulevard, with a stop in front of the city hall, where there were cheers for Principal Baker.

Then the march proceeded through a section north of Delmar, across Skinner road, which is just inside the St. Louis limits, and back through Parkway, with frequent stops for cheering. Some strikers sang a parody march-
Good School and We Left."

As the parade moved along four automobile loads of students swung into the lead. Many persons in apartments and residences leaned out of windows and applauded the marchers, some of whom ran into the ranks, and with them apparently to receive encouragement from their elders. The only disorder was a fist fight of several boys to restrain one of their number from entering the home of a School Board member.

Return to School.
At 10:30 the marchers returned to the high school and straggled inside. They gathered in the auditorium and were addressed by Principal Baker, who thanked them for the demonstration of sympathy, but said the best way to show their respect for him would be to return to classes, so that he could point out that they had obeyed him. They agreed to do so, with cheers.

Edward M. Read Jr., president of the School Board, said yesterday: "There's nothing to be gained by stringing this situation out in the papers. Reasons were assigned for not reappointing Mr.
Baker, but I do not care to discuss them. Some teachers were not reappointed."

60 WITNESSES ON HAND; MARGULIS
INQUEST DEFERRED

Hearing Put Over to Saturday to Give More Time logical Inquiry.

GIRL'S FATHER SITS WITH BOWED HEAD

Three Strangely Contrasting Groups of Persons Present, Waiting to Testify in the Case.

Three strangely contrasting groups of interested witnesses, aside from the idly curious, made up the gathering in the Coroner's office today, when the inquest into the murder of Mollie Margulis, criminally assaulted and choked to death one week ago tonight, and found in a rear yard adjoining Gamble playground, was scheduled to begin.

The inquest was deferred until Saturday, to give more time for the police and pathological inquiry into the case, and the witnesses, numbering nearly 60, were excused.

Among the witnesses, as they waited in expectation of the hearing, the group which appealed to the sympathy of onlookers was that composed of the murdered young woman's relatives and friends. In this group sat the father, Joseph Margulis, a disconsolate figure, with reddish hair, sitting with bowed head, he received with disapproval the announcement that the inquest would be held on Saturday. That day is his Sabbath, and the strict rules of Jewish orthodoxy prohibit him, not from attending the hearing, but from using the labor of others in going there.

"Will have to Walk,"
"It will mean," said one of his daughters, "that father will have to walk all the way to the police station, which was closed while the volcano was active."

Volcano House, the hostelry near the crater, which was closed while the volcano was at its greatest activity a few days ago, was reopened last night and a 100 guests spent the night there watching the volcanic action.

There were a great many light earthquakes in the Hileia district of this island yesterday, the trem-

MILLER, BERTHON HELD WHEN 12 POLICEMEN ARE WOUNDED

Forty of French Girl Anarchists Followers Jailed After Clash at Meeting.

By the Associated Press.
BORDEAUX, France, May 22.— Mlle. Germaine Berthon, the girl anarchist who was acquitted by a jury in December, 1923, of the murder of Marius Plateau, a reporter for the Royalist newspaper, L'Action Francaise, was arrested today for defying the police and carrying a loaded revolver during an anarchist rally last night. Forty of her sympathizers also were jailed.

Police officers, including two officers, were wounded in a fight with the anarchists, which resulted from the refusal of the Municipality to authorize the meeting.

Mlle. Berthon declared she was forced to carry the weapon because she feared attacks from Royalist sympathizers.

filled today for the trial of Harry Hoffman, motion picture proprietor, charged with the murder of Mrs. Maude A. Bauer, on a lone-

"We will cut Hoffman's trial to pieces," was the concluding statement, to the jury by District Attorney Egan, who opened a rehearsal of the circumstantial evidence upon which the prosecution would build its case.

Barbara Faba, 12 years old, identified Hoffman as the man who invited Mrs. Bauer into his automobile after the woman's machine had stuck in a mudhole. Mrs. Bauer's body was found 20 minutes later in a ditch. "That is the man," said Barbara, pointing at Hoffman.

Active Crater of Kilauwa in Hawaii Again Enlarged to Its Former Size.

By the Associated Press.
HILO, T. H., May 22.—The active crater, or fire pit, of the volcano Kilauwa has changed its size again. Three days ago accretions of lava and other ejecta had diminished its area to an opening 25 feet across and 100 feet long. Yesterday the pit was enlarged again to practically its former dimensions, 3000 by 2000 feet, by the new material breaking away and falling into the volcano.

There has been no violent eruption of Kilauwa since Sunday, though there were many earthquakes in the nearby region yesterday and a severe one last night.

TEN-CENT STORE MAN'S ESTATE EXCEEDS $35,000,000

Widow Leaves no Will; Estate Goes to Two Daughters and Grandchild.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, May 22.—Mrs.
Jessie Woolworth, widow of F. W.
Woolworth, who died yesterday, left no will and her estate undoubtedly will pass to her two daughters and her granddaughter.

At the time of his death the estate of Woolworth was estimated between $35,000,000 and $40,000, 000, consisting principally of $12, 500,000 par of common and $22, 500,000 par of preferred stocks of F. W. Woolworth Co., 100 per cent ownership in the Woolworth Building, which was without mortgage and worth $11,000,000; stock holdings in the Irving National Bank, in which he was a director, and some miscellaneous investments.

Except for the sale of the preferred stock, which was disposed of in order to pay inheritance taxes and the recent sale of the Woolworth Building, the estate has remained intact. The market value of the common stock when Woolworth died was approximately $17, 000,000, but the subsequent declaration of a 30 per cent stock dividend and the stockholders' adoption of a plan to split the $100 par shares on a four-to-one basis will raise the estate's holding to 702, 000 shares, which at the present market price of $52 a share makes them worth about $37,500,000.
Dividends of $3 a share on the new stock will bring in about $2,100, 000 annually.

KASUMIGAURA, Japan, May 22.— —This was a notable day for the American Army aviators who are circling the globe by air. Within 15 hours they dived down out of the bleak, windy north Pacific regions where storms and fogs have hampered their progress for days, into a temperate climate, where they probably can make up some of the lost time. They made the first landing American airmen have made in Japan, and they did two days' tasks in one.

Taking off from the icy waters of Hitokappu Bay, off Yutorofu Island, in the Kuriles, at 3 a. m., the aviators swooped down over Kushiro, on the island of Hokkaido, 4 hours and 50 minutes later, circled once over the American destroyer John D. Ford, on duty there in case the fliers needed aid, and went on without landing to Minato, at the northern end of the island of Honshu, on which Tokyo is located. They landed at Minato, 34 miles from Hitokappu Bay, at 10:40 a. m.

At 12:30 p. m. they took the air again for the 550-mile hop to Kasumigaura, the point nearest Tokyo, where they arrived at 5 p. m.

Dip Like Water Fowl.
Thousands of watchers along the water front raised cheers when the airplanes appeared to the north, three tiny blurs forming a triangle in the distant afternoon haze. They approached the aerodrome across the gray green hills, which cut off the lagoon from the Pacific, flying in perfect formation. Nearing the landing place the second and third flyers fell in line behind Lieut. Smith, soared over the crowds and turned and dipped with the grace of giant water fowl to the calm waters of the lagoon.

Originally it had been planned that the jump from Yutorofu Island to the main land of Japan and the further hop to Kasumigaura should occupy successive days, but yesterday Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, commanding the flight, advised American naval officers on the Ford that the aviators would try to do both today.

PHELAN SELECTED TO PLACE MADDOO IN NOMINATION

Picking of Ex-Senator From California Considered Effort to Erase "Klan Candidate" Impression.

MADDOO AND RALSTON HAVE A LONG TALK

Both Agree Party Should Adopt Progressive Platform; Former Becoming More Formidable.

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—There is special significance in the announcement by Maddoo headquarters here that the former Secretary of the Treasury will be placed in nomination at the Democratic national convention by former Senator James D. Phelan of California. Phelan is a Catholic.

His selection obviously is part of an effort to erase a widespread impression that Maddoo is the "Klan candidate." It indicates also that the Maddoo adherents are seeking to thwart the announced determination to make the Klan a dominant issue in the convention.

Underwood will be placed in nomination by Gov. Brandon of Alabama. The first in the roll call of the states. He will demand the adoption of a plank expressing unqualified opposition to the Klan.

Arizona, second in the list of states, probably will yield to California, thus permitting Phelan to make an almost immediate reply to the inferential charge that Maddoo's candidacy is too closely linked with Klan support.

McAdoo's friends believe that the choice of Phelan as his first senatorial sponsor in the convention is a 10-strike. It does, indeed, look like excellent strategy.

It is a fresh indication of the political shrewdness with which the McAdoo movement is being directed and constitutes another warning to those of his opponents who believe that his candidacy will be easily disposed of.

Confers With Senators. McAdoo held conferences here yesterday and Tuesday with numerous leading Democrats of the House and Senate, including Sen. Harrison of Mississippi, who will be the temporary chairman and "keynote" speaker of the convention. Senator Ralston of Indiana, Senators Glass and Swanson of Nevada.

Particular interest attached to the call paid him by Senator Ralston, who is generally regarded as the leader in the field of second-class candidates. Ralston had lunch and a long conversation with McAdoo. McAdoo was quoted as having told the Senator that he was in the fight more vigorously than ever because of the attempt to spatter him with oil.

He said his contest represented the fight of progressivism against the reactionary elements of the party. Ralston agreed that the party should adopt a progressive platform and declared that, with such a platform, it would carry the State of Indiana. It would carry the State of Indiana.

Ralston told McAdoo that he was not seeking the nomination and he was not encouraged the use of his name as a candidate. This does not mean, of course, that Ralston would not accept the nomination if he were picked as a compromise candidate. Notwithstanding his passive attitude, the Indiana delegation under the leadership of Tom Taggart, who got to the convention instructed for him and to vote for him as long as he is believed to have a chance.

McAdoo is said to have assured the Senator that he would make no effort to capture the Indiana delegation.

Conducting Own Fight. There is no doubt that McAdoo in the last few weeks, has become a more formidable factor in the race than seemed possible immediately after the oil disclosures. His followers profess the greatest con-

Maj. Blair May Also Have Employed His Reputed Sixth Sense, but He "Knows His Stuff."

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Having completed his task of advising the army round-the-world flyers as to weather conditions along the Alaskan coast and on the Pacific Ocean—the most dangerous stretch of the flight—Maj. William R. Blair of the Signal Corps will return to the United States as soon as he can get a southbound boat out of Dutch Harbor, Alaska. Air Service officials said today.

Blair, who is one of the best known meteorologists in the world, rendered invaluable service to the army flyers by his accurate weather forecasts, which enabled the flight to proceed with the minimum of danger and delay. These officials declared.

Smith Gives Blair Credit. Blair's work for the flyers has not received much attention, as it was part of the "dope work" preparation for the more spectacular events. His name came into prominence, however, when Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, commander of the airplane, reported from Paramushiro, Japan.

"A great deal of our success so far is due to Maj. Blair's accuracy in forecasting weather. Not a single possible flying day lost since leaving Alaska," he reported.

Major-General Patrick, chief of the air service, expressed even more appreciation of Blair's work. In a letter yesterday to Major-General Saitama, chief of the Signal Corps, he stated that Blair's accurate forecasts had been an important factor in the Pacific flight, adding that he did not see how the "hope" could have been made without his assistance.

Lacked Proper Equipment. Capt. Alfred H. Thielen, Chief of the Signal Corps Meteorological Bureau, explained today how Blair's predictions from study of the currents, Thielen said that the accuracy of Blair's forecasts was remarkable as he had only local and meager data to work with, besides being handicapped by lack of proper equipment.

When Blair left Seattle, April 7, his principal meteorological equipment consisted of barometers, several hundred small rubber balloons, thermometers and a theodolite. The theodolite and the balloons were for observations of the direction and velocity of winds in the upper air.

Methods of Observation. Thielen explained that Blair's method of observation was as follows: "Major Blair was always several hundred miles in advance of the flyers. He would make his observations from the coast guard cutter Haida, whose main purpose was to observe the balloons and theodolite from the air.

"Every day Major Blair would send up several balloons. These balloons were made of pure rubber, filled with hydrogen, and so weighted that they ascended at the rate of 150 yards a minute. Each minute for 15 minutes, Blair would take observations on a balloon through the theodolite. By the degree of deflection of the theodolite he was able to determine the direction and velocity of the wind in the upper air.

Work Extremely Difficult. "For rough estimations, cloud heights also were measured. With these data, and readings from the barometer and thermometers, Blair would make small forecasts for the next few hours, and these were used by the flyers. Blair received by telegraph or radio of conditions along the coast."

Major Blair's work was extremely difficult, Thielen said, because the Army nor the Navy had accurate meteorological data on the Aleutian Islands, the Asiatic coast and stations along the Pacific coast of North America.

From these charts Blair would send his forecasts to the flyers by radio. The predictions were for 24 hours and usually consisted of such laconic phrases as "fog in flight at 2000 or 3000 feet," and "the sky clear."

Now that Blair has finished his task, the flyers will depend upon the Japanese information until they reach China. The methods used by Blair are the result of experiments he and other Signal Corps meteorologists have conducted in the United States and France. Officials here assert that Blair has a "sixth sense" and that his actual methods cannot be described. But that he knows his stuff, before going to Alaska he was in charge of the experiment station at McChord Field, Dayton, O., and was trying to find a way to make observations in the air.

Immediately before the flight Blair conducted a school on weather observation for the army flyers. Blair obtained his B. S. degree from the University of Chicago in 1904, having written a thesis on physics. In the following year he joined the United States Weather Bureau, where he remained until the outbreak of the World War. He was commissioned Major in August, 1917, and was sent to France to organize the meteorological field force at Colombelles. He was in the war for three years, making forecasts for the Army in general and the Air Service in particular. In 1921 he wrote a report on the relation of meteorology to aeronautics. This is now a standard text in the Army.

British Airmen Earth-Bound by Bad Weather.

SHANGHAI, May 22.—Bad weather today prevented A. Stuart MacLaren, British aviator, who was flying around the world from Hong Kong, as he had planned, says a Reuters dispatch from Calcutta.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—About one-fifth of the journey of the fleetless army world flight air the three planes made completed when they landed in Kashiwarba Bay, Kuriles Islands, Japan, on the afternoon of May 17. The flyers had then covered 115 miles from the starting point at Santa Monica, Cal. in a total flying time of 11 hours and 20 minutes, averaging 100 miles an hour. Blair's work was extremely difficult, Thielen said, because the Army nor the Navy had accurate meteorological data on the Aleutian Islands, the Asiatic coast and stations along the Pacific coast of North America.

From these charts Blair would send his forecasts to the flyers by radio. The predictions were for 24 hours and usually consisted of such laconic phrases as "fog in flight at 2000 or 3000 feet," and "the sky clear."

On May 3 the remaining planes swept westward again to complete the crossing of the Pacific and distance of 350 miles covered in a flying time of 4 hours and 10 minutes. The 530-mile jump to the Aleutian Islands followed after weather delays again delayed the flyers until May 15, when they took off for Kashiwarba Bay, only to be forced to land at Komandor Island for the night and continuing their journey next day for a distance of 380 miles from the Aleutian Islands, covered in 11 hours and 30 minutes.

Convicted Under Mann Act. A jury at Los Angeles yesterday found Charles F. Kueger, 52 years old, a partner, formerly of 3220 the Mann act, guilty of violating a 15-year-old Los Angeles ordinance. The girl testified that he had her away last December.

Joseph W. Miller Dies. JEFFERSON CITY, May 22.—Notice was received here today of the death of Joseph W. D'Oisy to Fly to Tokyo in Borrowed Plane. SHANGHAI, May 22.—Capt. Pelletier D'Oisy will continue his Paris-to-Tokyo flight Sunday or Monday in a borrowed airplane, he announced this afternoon. After he had made a test flight after his business machine. The airplane was offered to the Frenchman by Gen. Ho Feng-ching, Military Governor of Shanghai, after D'Oisy's own plane was wrecked while landing here. D'Oisy's first stop on the continued flight will be Nanking. The death penalty was a jury last night for a 23-year-old man, and the second of two men to be tried for the murder of Harry Leonard, barkeeper at 2300 Broadway street, who was killed in a holdup on Dec. 30 last.

The trial was before Judge Falkenhainer, who on April 24, when George E. was sentenced to a jail term for his part in the murder. Cartwright's case was ordered by prosecutors as part of the four. According to the confession, which was supplied the revolver, the automobile to Leonard, but did not participate in the actual holdup.

Guilty Pleas Set. Leon Williams, who with Bobbitt, is in city jail, trial, confessed he fired three shots which pierced the body of Williams and had pleaded guilty, but who was sentenced to hang. Falkenhainer set the plea and ordered that the Williams' trial be set for and Bobbitt, who has granted a change of venue, tried later in another court.

Confession Admitted. The jury was ordered while the court considered the confession of Cartwright, beaten by policemen before signed the document and two women testified they saw him with a black and swollen eye in jail. The prosecution offered Assistant Circuit Attorney L. C. Cartwright, who was summoned to Laclede Station to testify on the confession on the morning of 1. None of the negroes showed marks of mistreatment, he declared, and all willingly related circumstances of the murder. When the jury was called, Cartwright was read, but Wright did not again take stand. A sister of George E. testified Cartwright set the line at that time.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The chief difference between the Mellon tax proposal and the Simmons rates is that persons with incomes running up to $66,000 a year will get a greater reduction in taxes under the Mellon scheme. Above $66,000 and the Mellon plan, the reductions would have been greater under the Mellon plan, though there is really only a slight difference. Above $100,000, however, the differences are material.

The Mellon plan would have out the taxes of the persons of larger income, the theory being that such a procedure would help business by stimulating capital to go into productive enterprises. Senator Simmons introduced as a counter proposal the idea that under his plan more individuals would benefit—about 6,400,000—and argued that the persons of larger income were not suffering now. As he pointed out the two ideas the insurgent Republican group chose to follow Senator Simmons.

Reduction This Year. All parties were agreed on the plan to give the taxpayers a flat 25 per cent reduction on taxes payable this year on 1933 incomes. It has been retained in the bill approved by the conference committee. This provides that a taxpayer, on June 15 next will not pay the same quarterly installment which he paid on March 15.

Instead, he will be obliged to pay less. For instance if his total tax bill for 1933 was $1000 and he paid a fourth on March 15, he will subtract the one-fourth reduction granted by the new law and makes a final tax of $750 and so on. Credit himself with the $250 already paid in March so that the balance due to the Government will be $500. This can be paid in installments of $156.25 each on June 15, September 15 and December 15. Here is a table which shows what taxes will be payable during 1933.

On the return of a married man and no dependent children. Out of the $6,612.176 taxpayers in the United States, approximately $100 million have been given greater reductions under the Mellon plan than the Simmons plan. This leaves $6,512.176 taxpayers who will receive a greater reduction under the Simmons plan than the original Mellon plan.

Both Republicans and Democrats believe there will be no deficit until 1924 and that by that time changes can be made in the law or that the situation can be met by stringent economies.

"I hope the President will sign this bill," Senator Smoot said. "If I were he, I would go on the theory that business men will say that this at least is a reduction. To veto the bill will mean chaos. It is better to sign it, for its effect on business will be stimulating."

"We have removed from the bill most of the objectionable provisions. My chief regret is that we could not get rid of the possible deficit. In any event, it cannot be an actuality for a year or two."

Longworth Approves Bill. Longworth said he had no quarrel with the conference committee for dropping his own rates for the Simmons schedule.

"It is practically the House bill and it stands," Longworth explained. "The exemptions for married men will mean an additional loss of approximately $10,000,000, but the rates themselves are only less than one-half of 1 per cent different. There will be few final passage."

Senator Simmons, the Democratic leader in the tax fight, said: "While most of the recommendations made by Secretary Mellon to administrative features of the law are in the bill, all of the provisions promised by the tax rates are retained in income tax bill, as we claim, is a Democratic bill except as to administrative features."

House say they will demand a record vote on the eliminated provisions. The conference report will be submitted to the Senate Friday and it is expected prompt action will follow. Representative Longworth believes the report will reach the House Monday and be acted upon at once.

Democrats Claim Vindication. The attitude of the Democratic National Committee toward the compromise bill and recommendations previously made by Secretary Mellon was expressed in a statement issued by the committee quoting Representative Garner.

The promise is made by the Democrats to enact further tax reform, including a change of the present "unlucky" tariff war.

Garner says the conference report is a complete vindication of the tax program offered by the Democrats of the House of Representatives "as the most feasible of enactment at this session." He describes the conference report also as "a repudiation of the Mellon plan."

Democrats of the House of Representatives these tax proposals in the light of the actual facts and free from the vast amount of misinformation and misrepresentation with which the

Taxes Under Mellon and Simmons Rates Compared

SYRACUSE CHANCELLOR SWORN IN AS A RESERVE COLONEL

Says Small Army With a Large Reserve Is in Present Conditions, Necessary.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 22.—Chancellor Charles Wesley Flint of Syracuse University became the center of one of the university's greatest controversies of recent years when he was sworn in today as Colonel of the United States Army Reserves by Maj. Carl J. Adler, adjutant of the 95th Division. A bitter feud has been carried on for months at the university between anti-war and preparedness societies.

The chancellor in a formal statement declared that he believed the reserve officers training corps should be the head of the organization and assist it in every possible way.

"I am an apostle of peace," he said, "and along with 100,000,000 other Americans have no use for war. I shall do everything in my power to keep out of war. But if in this I work humbly with all others, I also fall, then I am ready to render any service within my power in the way left for me."

For myself I believe that a small regular army with a large reserve or semi-regular army, is in present world conditions, absolutely necessary not merely for national defense, but for the protection of life and our civilization and of humanity."

$65,000 Mail Robbery Suspect Held.

PHILADELPHIA, May 22.—Alvin Karpis, alias William Brown, alias Henry Sawyer, said to be wanted in connection with a $65,000 mail truck robbery in Atlanta, Ga. in June, 1932, and for whom police said a country-wide search had been conducted, was arrested here last night. Karpis has a long criminal record. In 1933 he was arrested in Jersey City with Harry Karlton and another man known as "Handsome Harry" charged with killing a policeman. Karlton and Karpis were sentenced to life imprisonment in the New Jersey state prison. He was paroled in 1933 for good behavior. Karpis also has served terms in Sing Sing, Albany, N. Y., county prison, and the Maine state prison.

Admiral Outranks General.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—For a second time the Attorney-General has settled a dispute as to the relative rank of army and navy commanders in Hawaii. Because of a shift in personnel since the last ruling, the question was referred to Washington and Attorney-General Stone decided that Rear Admiral McDonald outranks Major-General Sumner and will take precedence over him in coming visit to the fortifications of the island.

FUNERAL OF W. H. AVERILL TO BE HELD TOMORROW

Manager for Investment Company Was Found Dead in Bed From Heart Disease.

The funeral of Walter H. Averill, business manager for the Securities Investment Co., who was found dead in bed yesterday morning at his home, 6015 Clemens avenue, St. Rose's Church at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

His death was due to heart disease, physicians decided, although it was believed that he had been in poor health when he retired Tuesday night. Six children survive.

Averill, who was 44 years old, was the son of Walter Hollis Averill, a merchant tailor here for many years. He and his brother, Alex, continued the business for a time after their father's death about 20 years ago. Afterward, he became a salesman for the Thomas Cusack Co., outdoor advertising, and about six years ago he went to the Securities Investment Co.

25,000 ACRES IN WAR-SWEPT SOMME UNFIT TO CULTIVATE

Former Arable Land to Be Abandoned; 75,000 Acres. PARIS, May 22.—Not more than 25,000 acres of former arable land will have to be definitely abandoned in the war-swept district of the Somme, according to an official report made today. The original estimate was that nearly 75,000 acres had been left in such a condition after the war that it would never be possible to cultivate it again.

Only one village, Thiepval, will not be rebuilt, although it was at first thought that several villages would never be reconstructed. The owners of the abandoned land will be compensated by the Government.

REGENTS FOR SPANKINGMiss Phyllis Perkins Sustained for Whipping Boy Pupil by Board.Possibly the spanking Miss Phyllis Perkins administered to 14-year-old Virgil Walls did not seem as serious to the Board of Regents of the Cape Girardeau State Teachers' College yesterday as it had to Virgil while he was being spanked.
The board, after hearing Miss Perkins' side of the story, refused to revoke her teaching certificate, as had been recommended by Supt.
Russell of the St. Louis County schools, under whom she is principal of the Fair View School. Decision to uphold Miss Perkins in her right to spank refractory pupils was unanimous.However, it developed from the evidence at the hearing that this year is Miss Perkins' last at Fair View. She will teach at Desloge, Mo., next year.Three of the principal's assistants appeared in her behalf at Cape Girardeau. They testified that Miss Perkins had not whipped the Walls boy too severely. The defendant read newspaper clippings to the board in an effort to show how sentiment had been directed against her.Last March Miss Perkins was tried on a common assault charge before a Justice of the Peace at Clayton and fined $1. She has appealed from the verdict. A number of school children appeared as witnesses against her. They said she had two straps. A light strap, which was the official schooler's and a heavy strap which was not official, but which hurt worse and was used often. Virgil said he had been spanked unofficially.The Board of Regents of the Cape Girardeau School was brought into the case because Miss Perkins is a graduate of that school and the license was issued to her there.MOORE ATTACKS KU KLUX IN SPEECH TO WOMAN'S CLUBCandidate for Governor Criticizes Activities of Organization—Dr.
Nelson Also Talks.The Ku Klux Klan was mentioned by name for the first time by a Democratic candidate for Governor yesterday when George H.
Moore of St. Louis added to the intensity of his attack upon the organization during a speech at a luncheon of the Democratic Women's Club of St. Louis at Hotel Statler.Moore reiterated his former statements condemning organizations which oppose individuals because of race or religion. He cited passages from the Constitution of the United States, the Democratic platform of 1886 and the last Democratic State convention platform to support his stand and then added:
"I am not a klanman. I never will be a klanman. There has been no publicly made charge by his opponents that he is a klanman."Dr. Arthur W. Nelson of Bunc-ton, one of Moore's opponents for the nomination, preceded him as a speaker at the luncheon. He did not mention the Klan or refer to it.
He advocated laws more favorable to farmers' co-operative associations, lowering of assessments on farm lands, reduction of tariff on articles farmers buy, elimination of unnecessary Government bureaus and offices, economical administration of all State Government, particularly the Highway Department; betterment of schools but not at the expense of increasing taxation on farmers; a compensation law for labor; refusal of the Legislature to allow deficiency appropriation bills, and strict law enforcement.

NEW SWINDLE TRICK REPORTED

Train Passenger Says Fake Inspector Got $10.
A new swindle trick was reported to police at Union Station last night by Albert D. Steward of Weston, W. Va., who said he lost $10 to a stranger who boarded a train after he had taken his seat waiting for the train to pull out."I'm an inspector and I've got to see what you have in case of accident," the man told Steward. "You know, the company's responsible." Steward said he had $15 and allowed the stranger to examine the money. After the stranger had handed back the wad of bills he jumped off the train and disappeared. Steward, counting the money, discovered the $15 had been reduced to $3.

MAN RUN OVER BY TRAIN DIES

Found Under Viaduct With Both Legs Crushed.A man who was able only to give his name as John Mason, 58 years old, whose sister, Mrs. Thomas Bertrams, lives in Amman, N. M., died at city hospital last night, two hours after he had been found with both legs crushed by a Missouri Pacific Railroad train beneath the Chouteau avenue viaduct. He was not able to detail the circumstances of the accident. He wrote his name, "Marie Gandano, 314 North Front street, Memphis, Tenn.," on a piece of paper before he died, asking she be notified.Mason Sought at Mother's Request.
Nash Essel, 44 years old, is being sought by policewomen at the request of authorities of Corryton, Ky., who wrote that his mother, 72 years old, has not heard from him since 1922. He was an automobile salesman when last heard from.

MAN FAILS TO KEEP APPOINTMENT TO WED

Guests Left Waiting at Church and Police Are Asked to Find Bridegroom.

Miss Ethel Uthoff of Affton is unable to explain today why her fiancé, Alexander Herzog of 4129 Beethoven avenue, left her waiting at the church yesterday afternoon.

The prospective bride's mother is as much bewildered, though not as tearful. The minister who was to have performed the ceremony feels quite at sea. And even the best man, Elmer Schmitt, at whose home Herzog boarded, declares he does not know where the near-bridegroom is.

Herzog's abandoned Ford coupe was found on Chippewa street near Morganford road today. As for the 200 wedding guests who assembled at St. Marcus Evangelical Church, 2111 McNair avenue, at 4 p. m. yesterday—such comments. The day was not entirely a failure for the wedding guests, however. Mrs. Edgar Thompson, mother of the bride-to-be, had prepared a reception supper at the Gravois Farmers' Club hall. All guests were invited to the reception, and many of them came. Miss Uthoff and Mrs. Thompson were not present, but other members of the family acted as hosts and hostesses.

Pastor Asks for Search.
The Rev. Erich Leibner, pastor of St. Marcus Church, telephoned the police at 9:30 p. m. and asked that a search be made for Herzog. A patrolman went to the Schmitt home and to Herzog's saloon at 3801 Chippewa street this morning, but failed to find him. No word had been received from him at Miss Uthoff's home. Her mother declined to permit her to be questioned, saying that she was hysterical.

Mrs. Thompson said that Herzog and Miss Uthoff had met in St. Louis yesterday morning, and that he had taken her to a beauty parlor on North Grand boulevard. He left her there, saying that he would obtain the marriage license and meet her at the house they had rented at 5891 Gravois avenue at 11 a. m. He did not appear there at that hour. The Marriage License clerk at City Hall did not issue a license to Herzog yesterday.

Girl Prepares for Wedding.
When he failed to appear at the Gravois avenue address, Miss Uthoff returned to Affton to get ready for the wedding. In the belief that he had been delayed for some good reason, she thought he would appear eventually and held this hope until within a few minutes of the ceremony.

Mrs. Thompson has only one theory. "Mr. Herzog took my daughter downtown and they bought all their furniture for the house," she told a Post-Dispatch reporter today. "But the furniture never was delivered. Ethel asked him about it several times and he would reply, 'Oh, it'll be out in a day or so.' He might have been worried about this."

As far as she knew he had no bitter rivals, who might have sought to prevent the wedding. Herzog formerly resided at Fenton, but had operated his business in St. Louis for about a year. He had courted Miss Uthoff about four years.

WOMAN, KNOCKED DOWN BY DOG, GETS $5000 VERDICT

Mrs. Esther Spitz, 72, testified she suffered fractured hip in Fall.
A jury in Circuit Judge Landwehr's court yesterday found a verdict of $5000 in favor of Mrs. Esther Spitz, 72 years old, 3529 Flora court, against Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Asman, 3531 Flora court, for injury suffered as a result of the playfulness of a German police dog. Mrs. Spitz said that on Dec. 3, 1922, she was walking in the vicinity of the Asman home when the dog came bounding along and jumped against her, knocking her down. She suffered a fracture of the left hip, which caused her to be confined in a hospital for several months and obliged her to use a wheel chair for even a longer period. She sued for $20,000. She is the widow of Rabbi Moritz Spitz.

ASKS WEALTHY DONORS TO GIVE A 'Y' BUILDING

Festus J. Wade Outlines Plan Which Would Aid Development Fund.

Donation by some wealthy individual of a sum sufficient to erect an entire Y. M. C. A. building, as a memorial to the donor, was suggested by Festus J. Wade, president of the Mercantile Trust Co., at the team luncheon yesterday in the Y. M. C. A. $2,000,000 campaign.

The example of Mrs. William C. McBride in giving the funds for a Catholic High School was cited by Wade, who declared a score of St. Louisans were able to erect a complete "Y" building without material sacrifice.

Contributions of $107,605 were reported by team workers yesterday, for a total of $1,864,611 raised to date, leaving $1,185,389 to be obtained by tomorrow night if the goal sought is to be raised by that time. Among yesterday's gifts was one of $5,000 from Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Steedman.

Division A, of teams composed of Rotary Club members, has pledged $1000 for a room in one of the buildings for boys away from home. It is hoped other organizations will take similar action.

The solicitation teams' efforts are being augmented today by the work of a women's emergency squadron from various denominations and by the activities of 200 boys. The latter are hanging campaign tags, with subscription cards attached, to the door knobs of St. Louis homes. They will return later to collect filled out subscriptions.

3 years old still looks new!

"One afternoon, some years ago, I was admiring my neighbor's car. I thought it was new until he told me it was more than two years old; and that he kept it looking new by cleaning it occasionally with Common Sense. So when I bought my car, a little later, I also got a bottle of Common Sense, and used it on the car about once every five or six weeks. My car is now three years old, and the finish is perfect; with a lustre that is richer, and if anything, more beautiful than the day I first saw it in the salesroom."

If your car looks dull, and perhaps a bit commonplace, go over it with Common Sense. It is so easy to use. You will be amazed with the quick, brilliant, lasting results. And remember, it is not a "finish" nor the false lustre of a layer of wax, but your car's own original, permanent finish, sparkling again. Repainting saved and a better job done, at a cost of only $1.00.

Your favorite Accessory Dealer or Druggist can get it for you readily if you insist. Or direct from the Laboratory, postpaid, $1.00.

"THE ONLY FUEL FIT FOR YOUR MOTOR"

Boyce-ite

$5,000.00 REWARD to nail a malicious LIE

WORD has reached me indirectly that certain persons in this vicinity are spreading a malicious lie about concentrated Boyce-ite.

I don't know whether this is wilful slander or just plain stupidity. I imagine it is the latter.

Every new product, no matter how great its merits, is sneered at by a few people whose dense ignorance only lightening can penetrate.

These persons, whoever they are have demonstrated their low degree of mentality in the case of concentrated Boyce-ite, by the statements they have broadcasted.

Frankly, it is only because the reports which they have spread are a direct reflection on my own veracity that I am publishing this statement.

These people have said that concentrated Boyce-ite has pitted the surfaces and affected the lubrication of certain automobile motors "that they know of." Now I have repeatedly said that concentrated Boyce-ite is absolutely harmless—that, being an oil, it positively cannot injure metal surfaces.

That is why, to nail once and for all the stupid lie that has been spread about this product to which I have given my name, I am offering a reward of $5,000.00 to any person or persons who can prove to me that concentrated Boyce-ite has at any time damaged the metal of any motor of any kind, anywhere.

I am offering this reward in earnest of my good faith and because I feel that this type of falsehood reflects not only on me but on my friends the dealers in this vicinity who sell concentrated Boyce-ite and who have recommended it to their customers because they know that it does all that I have said of it, and that, used continuously concentrated Boyce-ite NEVER FAILS. Here's what concentrated Boyce-ite will do for you:

FIRST: After twenty-five to five-hundred miles driving (depending upon the design of your motor) carbon knocks will disappear and the motor will be running like new.

SECOND: If you use concentrated Boyce-ite every time you buy gasoline, you will never again have to remove carbon, clean spark plugs or grind valves.

THIRD: Your motor will not only run more quietly but will produce more power and will start easier.

FOURTH: Without any change in your carburetor adjustment, concentrated Boyce-ite will add one, two or three miles to every gallon of gasoline you buy.

Now, go to any garage, automobile or accessory store or gas station in your city, buy two or more dollars' worth of concentrated Boyce-ite, use according to directions, and if you are not satisfied that what I have told you is an absolute fact, take your car to your regular garage, and if your trouble is due to carbon, I will pay for having that carbon burned out, if you will send me the bill.

Use concentrated Boyce-ite every time you buy gasoline. Used continually (not occasionally) concentrated Boyce-ite costs nothing as concentrated Boyce-ite saves more than it costs.

GERMAN COALITION EFFORTS BLOCKED

Supporters of Present Cabinet Refuse to Consider Von Tirpitz for Chancellorship.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch
and New York World.

Washington, May 22.—(AP)—Negotiations between the Liberal parties and the Nationalists toward building up a bourgeois coalition in the new Reichstag have reached a deadlock.

Efforts to secure from even the moderate of the Nationalists support for the present cabinet to constitute Adolf von Tirpitz for the Chancellorship.

The cabinet was denounced by the moderate of the Nationalists as being without sufficient authority to conduct the government of the Reich.

SAYS 'PETTING PARTY' COST HIM $362,000

Boston Merchant Testifies He Gave This Amount to Dis-barred Lawyer.

By the Associated Press.
CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 22.—Edmund D. Harbour, 53, suffering from heart disease, tottered to the witness stand of the Middlesex Superior Court yesterday and testified that he had paid over to Daniel H. Coakley, disbarred Boston lawyer, $362,000 in cash, bonds and stock for a "petting" party he had in his office with a "Mrs. Daley."
Coakley and William J. Corcoran, former District Attorney of the county, went on trial on indictments charging conspiracy to extort money from Harbour and others by means of threats between 1914 and the present time.
The incident, according to the witness, occurred in 1916. Harbour said that he had known the "Mrs. Daley" for 10 years before that. On one day in July, 1916, he testified, she came to his office for money. "While she was there," he said, "I embraced her and we had a petting party—just a petting party, your honor, and nothing else."
Suddenly, the witness explained, he heard a noise over the transom and saw the head of a man who said he was a policeman.
"I was all excited and didn't know what to do. But while the man was still in my office Mrs. Daley made the suggestion, which I accepted, to see Mr. Coakley, who would be able to straighten the matter out."
Harbour testified that when he reached Coakley's office two hours later he found not only Coakley and "Mrs. Daley" there, but a man who said he was Mrs. Daley's husband.
"I told Mr. Coakley the whole story and he said that I should return at a later date and he would then be able to tell me more definitely what he could do for me," the witness added.
"By the time he got through paying reasonable but undisclosed 'retainers,' lawyers and 'the injured woman,' Harbour testified he had expended $362,000. This amount, he said, he delivered to Coakley in cash, stocks and bonds. Coakley was given a five-year sentence on other blackmail charges.

FEAR EXPRESSED OF CUT IN FRENCH WHEAT ACREAGE

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, May 22.—The fear that the French peasants may forsake the growing of wheat for more profitable crops dominated a meeting of the Academy of Agriculture yesterday.
Joseph Hitler, member of the Academy, pointed out that there were 140,000,000 quintals of wheat now available on the market, furnished by the United States, Canada, Australia, India and Argentina. Of this quantity, he estimated, only 45,000,000 quintals would be absorbed by the world's consumption, leaving more than half left over at the next harvest. A quintal is 100 pounds.
M. Hitler stressed the fact that if no measures were taken to prevent the importation of wheat into France, prices at the next harvest would drop sharply and cause French farmers to cease planting. He urged the academy to make strong representations on this subject to the new Government.
Juror Convicted of Perjury.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Charles W. Rendigs, on trial for perjury in connection with his examination as to his qualification to sit as a juror in the E. M. Fuller bucketshop case, was found guilty by a jury last night.

How to Make Pineapple Jam

By Ann Proctor
Most every housewife uses fresh pineapple, but very few indeed know that with it you can make one of the most delicious jams ever tasted. As a spread on bread or toast it is just great; on ice cream or custards it is both attractive and delicious; on cream cheese and crackers it is perfect, and it makes one of the best cake fillers you ever used. It is also easy to make now. Even a child can do it in a few minutes, and the cost is only a few cents per glass. Here is the way to do it:
Pear and slice fresh pineapple. Cut into small pieces, discarding center, and put through food chopper or chop very fine. Measure 4 level cups (2 lbs.) chopped fruit into large kettle. Add 7 1/2 level cups (3 1/2 lbs.) sugar and mix well. Use hottest fire and stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard for one minute. Remove from fire and stir in one bottle (scant cup) CERTO. Stir and pour quickly.
The whole secret of this quick and easy way of making pineapple jam is CERTO, because CERTO supplies the natural fruit pectin which is lacking in pineapple. Without this added pectin no one could ever make pineapple jam. CERTO contains no gelatin—it is simply the "jelly" property of fruit which is concentrated and made convenient for home use.
CERTO is sold by all grocers with complete recipe books attached. With CERTO you can make your fruit one minute, as hot none of the other artificial color and flavor is boiled away. Best of all, it never fails to make perfect jam and is highly endorsed by government authorities and by leading science teachers and cooking editors.
Get a bottle of CERTO and some fresh pineapple and make a good supply of delicious pineapple jam for the winter.

PLAINTIFF HEARD IN PEPER WILL CONTEST

Christian P. Bushman Tells of Peculiarities of Mother and Family Squabbles.

Christian P. Bushman took the witness stand today in his suit to break the will of his mother, Mrs. Caroline Peper Bushman, telling of her alleged peculiarities and the family squabbles which he thinks biased her in disposing of her property. The trial is being held before Circuit Judge Grimm.

She had objected to his marriage, which occurred in 1906, he said. Her own marital experience ended in divorce a year later. She was superstitious and irritable, the witness testified, and her alleged idiosyncrasies grew worse with advancing years.

After the death of a brother in 1918 Bushman and his family went to live with his mother.

Miss Ida Niederjohn, a former maid in the Peper home at 4448 Washington boulevard, testified that Miss Peper, who resumed her maiden name after obtaining a divorce from the plaintiff's father, was superstitious. "If she went out one door she insisted on re-entering by the same door," said the witness. "She seemed to think it was bad luck to use a different door."

of Childish Disposition. Miss Niederjohn also testified that Miss Peper had crying spells and was of a gloomy disposition. "She also," the witness declared, "was of childish disposition, talked about foolish things and sometimes answered questions in a foolish way."

Bushman, in his petition, alleges his mother was not of sound and disposing mind and was influenced by her daughter, Mrs. Estelle Bushman Barlow. The will divided the estate among Mrs. Barlow, the plaintiff and a grandson of the son and grandson in trust of the daughter. The petition states that Miss Peper's estate originally was worth $700,000, but evidence was introduced yesterday by N. Murry Edwards and E. A. B. Garesche, attorneys for the plaintiff, that in 1911 she bequeathed to her daughter a large amount of realty, estimated at $500,000. In another suit the son is seeking to have some of these conveyances of realty set aside alleging that his mother was unduly influenced.

Attorney Harry H. Haussler, who drew the will, said that Miss Peper had sufficient mental capacity to execute the document and was not under her daughter's control.

STATE DENIES FREIGHT BOOST

Commission Rules Against Increases in North Missouri.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. JEFFERSON CITY, May 22.—The Missouri Public Service Commission today issued an order in which railroads operating in Missouri were prohibited from putting into effect advanced freight rates between St. Louis and Hannibal and intermediate points, north of the Missouri River and between Kansas City and St. Joseph and intermediate stations.

The rates at present per 100 pounds are: 65 cents on second-class freight; 55 cents on third-class freight and 41 1/2 cents on fourth-class. It was proposed to make the rates second-class, 75 cents; third, 60 cents; fourth, 44 1/2 cents. The commission decided to deny the advances after hearings.

Nerves On Fire From Neuritis

Thousands of people afflicted with neuritis take medicine for rheumatism and wonder why they don't get well. Such people do not know that even a slight attack of rheumatism may develop into a severe case of neuritis or "nerve inflammation," which calls for a different treatment.

Neuritis is often accompanied by a feeling as if the nerves were on fire, a burning in the muscles, stiffness in the joints or a tingling sensation in the hands or feet. Always there is pain—sharp, agonizing pain—which may hurt constantly or only at intervals.

Keen Neuritis Tablets will quickly soothe the throbbing, aching nerves and gradually assist in removing inflammation and soreness. Guaranteed harmless. Used and endorsed by physicians. Price $1.00.

By the Associated Press. ANNISTON, Ala., May 22.—Officers of the court were called today to keep back crows surrounded the Federal building when Mrs. Evelyn Sue Rickner testified in her case in connection with the killing of her husband, James C. Rickner.

The collapse of Mrs. Rickner while on the witness stand yesterday brought to dramatic and her story of mistreatment on the part of officer. Mrs. Rickner's voice frequently under emotion so no attempt to suppress women in the courtroom wailing like the witness. "I do not remember shooting," she said in her voice, adding quickly, "but I remember the flash of the gun."

On cross-examination, Mrs. Rickner denied going to dance with her husband while Rickner was in the army. She said she never knew him and her only connection with Rickner's mother time, she testified.

Letters from "Topsy," another woman in Germany, Rickner were read by her for the defense. These contained terms of endearment and plans for coming to sea to join the officer.

LETTERS FROM 'OTHER WOMAN' READ AT RICKNER TRIAL

Many Women in Court Sob as Army Officer's Widow Tells of Killing Him.

By the Associated Press.
ANNISTON, Ala., May 22.—Officers of the court were called upon today to keep back crowds that surrounded the Federal Building, when Mrs. Evelyn Sue Rickner resumed testimony in her own defense in connection with the charge of killing her husband, Lieut. James C. Rickner.

The collapse of Mrs. Rickner while on the witness stand late yesterday brought to a sudden dramatic end her story of alleged mistreatment on the part of the officer. Mrs. Rickner's voice broke frequently under emotion she made no attempt to suppress. Many women in the courtroom were sobbing like the witness.

"I do not remember shooting my husband," she said in trembling voice, adding quickly, "but I do remember the flash of the gun." On cross-examination, Mrs. Rickner denied going to dances with other men while Rickner was at war. She said she never kept late hours and her only companions were girls and relatives. She was living with Rickner's mother at the time, she testified.

Letters from "Topsy," alleged "other woman" in Germany, to Lieut. Rickner were read by counsel for the defense. These letters contained terms of endearment and spoke of plans for coming to America to join the officer.

ANNUAL AMATEUR FLOWER SHOW TO START SATURDAY

Exhibition Will Also Continue Throughout Sunday—No Charge for Admission to Garden.

The fifth annual amateur flower show of the Garden Club of St. Louis will be held Saturday and Sunday, further postponement on account of the weather being considered unnecessary. The show will open Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock and the hours on Sunday are from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. There are no charges for entries of flowers or for admission to the show, the Garden Club assuming all expenses in order to promote greater interest in gardening in St. Louis. Members of the Garden Club will not compete with the public for prizes, but will with one another for the bronze medal offered by the Garden Club of America, and in several other classes. Prizes for the public for entries of familiar flowers and plants include rare bulbs and seeds offered by national florists, garden tools, bird baths, hooks and silver plates and vases. There are special prizes for children in both the miniature garden and general classes. Opportunity for the apartment house dweller who has no garden is offered in the prizes for decorations for luncheon and dining room tables, when the flowers used may be either purchased or grown in one's own garden. All entries for the show must be on entry blanks supplied at Shaw's Garden, and everything must be there by 9 o'clock Saturday morning.

TILLMAN ANDERSON FILES

Seeks Re-election as Democratic State Senator.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 22.—Tillman W. Anderson of Commerce today filed with the Secretary of State for the Democratic nomination for a re-election as State Senator from the Twenty-third Senatorial District. Anderson is under charges of the theft of an adding machine from the State Capitol during the last session of the Legislature. His trial, which has been continued on several occasions in circuit courts of three counties is set for June 3 at Linn, Osage County. Anderson has denied the charge, declaring the machine found by State investigators at his home in Commerce was borrowed from the State Labor Department. Congressman J. Wolff Scott of Festus, Democrat, filed today for renomination from the Thirteenth District.

Funeral of Miss Josephine Delany.

Miss Josephine Delany, who for 20 years had made her home with the family of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Francis, 19 Lenox place, was buried in Calvary Cemetery today after a ceremony in the chapel of St. Ann's Home, Union and Page boulevards. She died at St. Ann's Home late Tuesday after a brief illness. Miss Delany was the aunt of Frank P. Walsh, well-known Kansas City lawyer, and Mrs. Frank Webb of St. Louis, and a distant relative of the Francis family. She is survived by one sister, Miss Susan Delany of St. Louis.

COOLIDGE ADVOCATES MORE OUTDOOR LIFE

Tells Conference It Is Certain to Wield Influence for Solidarity of Nation.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, May 22.—Development of outdoor life means development of a common denominator for the people, President Coolidge said today in an address opening the National Conference on Outdoor Recreation.

"In the case of a people which represents many nations, cultures and races, as does our own," the President said, "a unification of interests and ideals in recreation is bound to wield a telling influence for solidarity of the entire population. No more truly democratic force can be set off against the tendency to class and caste than the democracy of individual parts and provinces in sport."

The President told the several hundred delegates, who had assembled for a three-day conference, response to his call that the purpose of the meeting was "to encourage Americans to make more of their opportunities and appropriate more of the advantages America."

Instruction in Play Needed.
"Our youth need instruction in how to play as much as they need how to work," the President said.
"Those who are engaged in our industries need an opportunity for outdoor life and recreation no less than they need opportunity of employment. Side by side with the industrial plant should be the gymnasium and athletic field. Along with the learning of a trade, by which a livelihood is to be earned, should go the learning of how to participate in the activities of recreation, by which life may not only be more enjoyable but more rounded and complete."

"Out of this conference I think there may come a better appreciation of the necessary development of our life along these directions.
They should be made to contribute to health, to broader appreciation of nature and her works, to a truer insight into the whole affair of existence."

Proposes Government Aid.
"They should be made to mean to acquainting all of us with the wonders and delights of this world in which we live, and of this country of which we are the joint inheri-tors. Through them we may teach our children, true sportsmanship, right living, the love of being square and the sincere purpose to make our lives genuinely useful and helpful to our fellows."

President Coolidge indicated in his call for the conference that he desired it to work out a practical method by which the vast resources of the Federal Government could be co-ordinated to serve the people of the country in the enjoyment of all forms of outdoor activity.

NANGLE INTRODUCES BILL FOR DOWNTOWN COURTHOUSE SITE

Two Measures to Be Considered Meeting of Special Committee June 12.

Alderman Nangle today introduced a bill to locate the proposed bond-issue Courthouse in a downtown site, on the block bounded by Broadway, Market, Walnut and Fourth streets. He has already been in favor of a downtown site against the determined stand of many interested persons that the new Courthouse should be on the Memorial Plaza at Twelfth and Fourth. Downtown property owners and others have been equally determined on a Broadway location.

The board's Special Courthouse Site Committee is considering Alderman Krueger's bill locating the Courthouse on the Plaza. At the next board meeting, June 6, the Nangle bill will be referred to the committee, which will meet June 12 at 10:30 a. m. to consider both bills. The board will hold one of its last meetings before the summer vacation on the next day, and it would be possible, if the committee does not bring in a report, to discharge the committee by resolution and take up the question on the floor.

Senate Approves Naval Bill.
By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, May 22.—The Senate yesterday adopted the conference report on the navy apporpriation bill. It had previously been approved by the House and now goes to the President.

WILSON'S MILK

It's Yours for Wilson Milk Labels

HERE'S a real bargain in a Wilson Milk premium—a heavy, 3-quart, pure aluminum sauce pan. It's a regular 125 label premium—but for a limited time only, you can get it for the labels cut from 50 large cans of Wilson's Milk. And this is representative of kind of premium values we offer right along.

St. Louis Premium Room, 402 Market St.

If you have never used Wilson's Milk, buy a few cans from your grocer and try it. It is just pure milk—gathered fresh daily from dairying farms—concentrated to double richness and canned for your convenience. In addition to a quality milk that costs no more, you get useful premiums for the Wilson Milk labels—some for as low as 10 labels, and many special premium values like the aluminum sauce pan shown above. Buy Wilson's Milk—and save the labels.

FREE RECIPE BOOK

You should have the Wilson Milk recipe book. It contains tested recipes for making many new and delightful dishes with Wilson's Milk. Your name and address on a postcard will bring this helpful book to you.

NEW PLAYGROUNDS ARE RECOMMENDED

City Plan Commission Urges Establishment of Seven in Congested Districts.

Seven new playgrounds and three recreational centers, most of them to be located in badly congested districts east of Jefferson avenue, and to be financed from the $1,400,000 provided for parks and playgrounds in the bond issue, are recommended by the City Plan Commission in a report to the Board of Public Service today.

The purchase of leased ground, now used for playground purposes, and improvements, are also recommended, to come from a fund of $1,350,000 provided for park and playground improvements in the bond issue.

Should the Board of Public Service approve the commission's plan, ordinances will be drafted for the Board of Aldermen.

Based on Child Population.
The suggested program is based on a study of the child population, the report states, and on the fact that it is no longer possible to acquire large tracts of land for park purposes in the districts where they are most needed.

Three recreational centers, between 6 and 10 acres each, are recommended as a compromise because parks are not available. One of these centers should be at Lem's Park, recently acquired for playground purposes; one at Murphy Playground, 7th and 10th streets; and one at the corner of 10th and 11th streets, which the report contends should be purchased from the Board of Education, and another, for negroes, in the vicinity of Jefferson avenue.

Playgrounds should be provided in the vicinity of the following schools: Clay, 3519 North Eleventh street; Ames, 1313 Hebert street; Webster, 2126 North Eleventh street; Madison, 1118 South Seventh street; Clinton, 1109 Grattan street; Adams, 1311 Tower Grove avenue, and Blow, 516 Loughborough avenue.

Tract for Negroes Urged.
It is also recommended that ground at Pine street and Leffingwell avenue, now under lease and used as a negro playground, be purchased.

The commission further comments on many requests for public parks in the Baden, Lindenwood and Walnut Hills Park districts. It recommends that if such parks are desired that they be acquired by a division of costs between benefiting property owners and the city.

LOVE NOTE CLEW TO DYNAMITER

Attempt Made to Cripple Water Supply of Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 22.—Fragments of a love letter, a piece of fuse and the tire track of two automobiles were clues which city officials predict will solve the mystery of an unsuccessful attempt to dynamite the Los Angeles aqueduct between Owens Lake and Lone Pine, about 200 miles north of here, in an effort to cripple the city's water supply.

The explosion, which occurred between midnight and 1 o'clock yesterday, raised up about 50 feet of the concrete lining of the aqueduct, which is an open ditch at that point, and pulverized some sections of it, but did not destroy the aqueduct. According to William Mulholland, builder and chief engineer of the aqueduct, the damage was slight.

Veterans' Bureau Conference.
Dr. D. M. Hyman, Washington, is in St. Louis today as personal representative of Gen. Frank P. Hynes, director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, to confer with Charles G. Beck, recently appointed as manager of the Ninth District bureau office, in St. Louis. Dr. Hyman was in Kansas City yesterday and tomorrow will be in Omaha. He is head of the bureau's registration department.

2719 Prisoners at Leavenworth.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
LEAVENWORTH, Kan., May 22.—The population of the Federal penitentiary attained a new high record yesterday, with the arrival of 27 prisoners. Seventeen were received from Kansas City, five from St. Louis, three from Des Moines and two from Jefferson City. The population is now 2719. The previous high record, attained about a year ago, was 2711.

ADVERTISING. GIRLS! USE LEMON TO WHITEN SKIN

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of cream. It is just pure milk—gathered fresh daily from dairying farms—concentrated to double richness and canned for your convenience. In addition to a quality milk that costs no more, you get useful premiums for the Wilson Milk labels—some for as low as 10 labels, and many special premium values like the aluminum sauce pan shown above. Buy Wilson's Milk—and save the labels.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable bleach yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

Internationale Meeting Delayed.
By the Associated Press.
RIGA, May 22.—The fifth congress of the Third (Moscow) Internationale has been postponed until June 15.

The difference in cost between good vinegar and ordinary vinegar is just a few cents.

But this difference may mean the difference between a successful salad and a poor one.

It pays to use Heinz Vinegars which are made of the purest ingredients and with the greatest skill and care, then aged in wood to give them mellowness, flavor and aroma.

Now read this letter from Mr. Kane. It speaks for itself. It is because Bran is ALL bran that is effective in his case—just been in thousands of other ALL bran can produce 100 results.

My dear friend:
Imagine a young man weighing 150 pounds in the course of a few weeks in bed, a weakling and a failure. An elderly lady whom I had known for years and who was a last visit. Upon being to light she immediately mentioned product for such an ailment. Ma of us didn't look upon her visit lightly. . . . it was to laugh!
My dear friend, I am still laughing at your product, but because I am telling you and the world. "Eat Kellogg's Bran" should be called "Constipation Balm." I owe you my heartiest thanks. He laughed at Kellogg's Bran!

Now read this letter of thanks from Mr. Kane. It speaks for itself. Remember, it is because Kellogg's Bran is ALL bran that it was so effective in his case—just as it has been in thousands of others. Only ALL bran can produce 100 per cent results.

My dear friend:

Imagine a young man weighing 165 pounds in the course of a few months gained in bed, a weakling weighing 94 pounds. An elderly lady whom I knew since I was a kid paid me what she thought was a last visit. Upon being told of my plight she immediately mentioned your product for such an ailment. Maybe some of us didn't look upon her views very lightly. . . . it was to laugh!

My dear friend, I am still laughing. . . . not at your product, but because I am able to tell you and the world at large, "Eat Kellogg's Bran!" It should be called "Constipation's worst enemy." I owe you my heartfelt gratitude. I can talk, and whenever the opportunity presents itself, my mouth is always full of Kellogg's Bran. Wishing you countless days of progress, I am Yours for success,

John M. Kane,
228 Salem St., Woburn, Mass.

Eat Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krum-bled, regularly to relieve constipation permanently. Two tablespoonfuls daily in chronic cases, with every meal. It is guaranteed to bring results, or your grocer will return your money. You will like the delicious nut-like flavor. Sold by all grocers.

MILLIONS MAY 'LISTEN IN'

ON DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

Special Arrangements Made for Broadcasting Proceedings at Madison Square Garden.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Arrangements have been completed whereby a greater range of publicity will be accorded the Democratic National convention, which meets in Madison Square Garden June 24, than probably any similar gathering ever held.

Stanley J. Quinn, assistant chairman, and John R. Young, secretary of the New York Executive Committee, have made contracts with various broadcasting radio companies and with motion picture corporations issuing news reels whereby many millions of persons, thousands of miles from this city, will be in touch with the proceedings.

The speaker's platform will be on the Twenty-seventh street side of the Garden. From its center a tongue will project into the main auditorium, slightly beyond the front of the circle of boxes. At the end of this tongue will be a pedestal upon which the speaker may lay his notes. The pedestal's principal function will be to hold the microphone which will transmit the orations expected to be delivered there.

An announcer at the microphone will describe what is going on. When the broadcasting companies have completed their plans announcements will be made in newspapers throughout the country just what wave length to tune in on.

All producing companies which issue news reels will have equal opportunities, the convention extending to the news reels the same free courtesies extended to all newspapers.

MANUFACTURERS REGRET

JAPANESE EXCLUSION ACT

NEW YORK, May 22.—Asserting that the question of Japanese immigration could be most effectively settled through diplomatic negotiations, the National Association of Manufacturers yesterday adopted a resolution expressing regret that Congress had undertaken to enforce by legislation an exclusion policy.

Describing a proposed constitutional amendment to prohibit or regulate the labor of all persons under 18 years of age as a "revolutionary grant of power to Congress and repugnant to our conditional conception of local responsibility in self-government," the manufacturers in another resolution pledged themselves to protect and better child life in their communities.

John C. Bradley, past president of the National Coal Association, analyzing the coal situation, told the manufacturers that there were more "coal mines and coal mining companies today on the verge of bankruptcy than in any other industry in this country." He attributed this to the high wages of miners.

The following letter from President Coolidge was read at the annual dinner of the association last night:

"I appreciate the cordial invitation extended to me on behalf of the National Association of Manufacturers and I greatly regret that it is out of the question for me to come to New York for the annual convention."

"The industry of this country has long recognized that co-operation is essential to the proper conduct of business and that, in a broad way, a policy of mutual helpfulness has replaced the ruthless competition of our early history. I am sure that in the future this same spirit of co-operation and helpfulness will govern more fully the relations of industry to the public and the relation of industry to government. I know of no better way in which this can be accomplished than through such organizations as yours."

Clover Leaf Strike Averted.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 22.—A threatened strike vote of telegraphers of the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railway was averted today when J. J. Bernier, president of the company, appeared before the United States Railway Labor Board and said his company would abide by the decision of the board in the question of representation of its telegraphers. The Order of Railway Telegraphers had charged that the company was seeking to disrupt the union on the Clover Leaf division of the road, and was offering a $12 a month increase to telegraphers who agreed to sign up as individuals.

In the third of a series of articles written for the Post-Dispatch, Henry Ford, Secretary of the Old Colony Business Service Bureau, today discusses the subject of fertilizer and its relation to the Muscle Shoals problem. His purpose in presenting a simplified discussion of the topic is to let the farmer see some of the scientific generalities about the Shoals project.

By Edwin Dial Torgerson.
"Cheap fertilizer for the farmer" is the magic password means of which the greatest of national waterpower developments almost has been delivered into the hands of Henry Ford.

The subject of nitrogenous fertilizer has seemed so forbidden and technical that few people evidently have "bothered their head" to look into it. The average man takes his science on the run, and the passenger on a fast train reads the billboards flitting past. That is why the real significance of Muscle Shoals has escaped millions of Americans; it is why pressure has been brought to bear on Congress from outside sources over the United States, and it is why Henry Ford's bid has all been accepted.

What has fertilizer to do with hydro-electric power?

Simply this: the air we breathe contains more than 75 per cent nitrogen; nitrogen is one of the three basic constituents of commercial fertilizer; and nitrogen may be extracted from the air by means of the electric furnace. Nitrogen also is the basic constituent of all munitions, from gunpowder to TNT.

In order to secure an unlimited supply of nitrogen for military purposes, the Government during the World War started building the greatest dam in the world at Muscle Shoals on the Tennessee River, in Alabama. It also built two great plants for the fixation of nitrogen from the air; that is, "fixing" it in usable form, in combination with other elements. The cost of this project to the taxpayer was about $135,000,000, and millions more must be spent to complete the project.

The armistice was signed before any of this expensive equipment was needed for war purposes. No hydro-electric power has yet been produced at Muscle Shoals, because the Government, in its haste, but one of the nitrate plants operated for 28 days, prior to the armistice, on power derived from a steam plant. Wilson Dam, however, is nearing completion, and it is only a matter of months before electrical energy will be generated there.

Ford Advertising Value.
Like the rusting merchant marine, the useless Hogg Island shipyard, and many other products of over-zealous war activity, Muscle Shoals was erroneously regarded as a giant scrap heap. Congress refused to appropriate money to complete the dam, after the war.

Then Henry Ford offered a scrap price for Muscle Shoals—$5,000,000 for the two nitrate plants, a quarry and the Government's interest in a steam plant of a private company which had been enlarged for war purposes—a total outlay of about $32,000,000. He also agreed to lease the power site at Muscle Shoals for 100 years, though the Federal Waterpower Act prohibits leases longer than 50 years.

Further, he promised to maintain Nitrate Plant No. 2 always in readiness for war, and in time of peace to manufacture commercial fertilizer to be sold to the farmers at cost plus 8 per cent, "according to demand."

Other offers had been made previously for Muscle Shoals, extending from the year 1903 to 1921 and 1922. But the Ford proposal had the tremendous advertising value of the Ford name, and the electric message he sped round the continent that Henry Ford was "going to do something for the farmer."

Clamor About Fertilizer.
Real estate men swarmed to Muscle Shoals and began spreading the news throughout the nation that Ford was going to build a vast industrial city there. Thousands of salesmen carried the word-of-mouth message, plentifully colored. Farm organizations took up the cudgel in favor of Ford, who was going to provide cheap fertilizer for the impoverished land.

And all the time Ford had promised nothing, proposed to do nothing, contracted to do nothing but manufacture nitrogenous fertilizer for sale at "cost plus 8 per cent."

The House of Representatives ever vigilant of the rural vote, voted this spring to deliver Muscle Shoals to Henry Ford on his own terms. The admitted reasons were the clamor about fertilizer and the uncanny personal popularity of Henry Ford.

'Cheap Fertilizer for Farmers' by Henry Ford's Scheme at Muscle Shoals Is Declared Impossible

Nitrogen by Air Fixation Process Is Believed Unprofitable in Peace Time—Reasons for 'Cost Plus 8 Per Cent' Contract.

In the third of a series of articles written for the Post-Dispatch, Edwin Dial Torgerson, Research Secretary of the Old Colony Business Service Bureau, today discusses the subject of fertilizer in its relation to the Muscle Shoals problem. His purpose in presenting a simplified discussion of this topic is to lift the "smoke screen" of scientific generalities about the Shoals project.

By Edwin Dial Torgerson.

"Cheap fertilizer for the farmers" is the magic password by means of which the greatest of our national waterpower developments almost has been delivered into the hands of Henry Ford.

The subject of nitrogenous fertilizer has seemed so forbidding and technical that few people evidently have "bothered their heads" to look into it. The average man takes his science on the run, like the passenger on a fast train who reads the billboards flitting past.
That is why the real significance of Muscle Shoals has escaped millions of Americans; it is why pressure has been brought to bear on Congress from rural sections all over the United States, and it is why Henry Ford's bid has all but been accepted.

What has fertilizer to do with hydro-electric power?

Importance of Nitrogen.
Simply this: the air we breathe contains more than 75 per cent of nitrogen; nitrogen is one of the three basic constituents of commercial fertilizer; and nitrogen can be extracted from the air by means of the electric furnace. Nitrogen also is the basic constituent of all munitions, from gunpowder to TNT.

In order to secure an unlimited supply of nitrogen for military purposes, the Government during the World War started building the greatest dam in the world at Muscle Shoals, on the Tennessee River, in Alabama. It also built two great plants for the fixation of nitrogen from the air; that is, for "fixing" it in usable form, in combination with other elements. The cost of this project to the taxpayers was about $135,000,000, and millions more must be spent to complete the project.

The armistice signed before any of this expensive equipment was needed for war purposes. No hydro-electric power has yet been produced at Muscle Shoals, because the great dam is not finished, but one of the nitrate plants operated for 28 days, prior to the armistice, on power derived from a steam plant. Wilson Dam, however, is nearing completion, and it is only a matter of months before electrical energy will be generated there.

Ford Advertising Value.

Like the rusting merchant marine, the useless Hogg Island shipyard, and many other products of our feverish war activity, Muscle Shoals was erroneously regarded as a plant scrap heap. Congress refused to appropriate money to complete the dam, after the war.

Then Henry Ford offered a scrap price for Muscle Shoals—$5,000,000 for the two nitrate plants, a quarry and the Government's interest in a steam plant of a private company which had been enlarged for war uses—a total outlay of about $82, 000,000. He also agreed to lease the power sites at Muscle Shoals for 100 years, though the Federal Hydroelectric Act prohibits lease, longer than 50 years.

Further, he promised to maintain Nitrate Plant No. 2 always in readiness for war, and in time of peace to manufacture commercial fertilizer to be sold to the farmers at cost plus 8 per cent, "according to demand."

Other offers had been made previously for the Muscle Shoals, extending from the year 1903 to 1921 and 1932. But the Ford proposal had tremendous advertising value for the Ford name, and the electric message spread round the continent that Henry Ford was "going to do something for the farmer."

Clamor About Fertilizer.

Real estate men swarmed to Muscle Shoals and began spreading the news throughout the nation that Ford was going to build a vast industrial city there. Thousands of salesmen carried the word-of-mouth message, plentifully rewarded. Farm organizations took to the cudgel in favor of Ford, who was going to provide cheap fertilizer for the impoverished land.

And all the time Ford had promised nothing, proposed to do nothing, contracted to do nothing but manufacture nitrogenous fertilizer for sale at "cost plus 8 per cent." The House of Representatives ever vigilant of the rural vote, used this spring to Ford on his own terms. The admitted reasons were the clamor about fertilizer and the much personal popularity of Henry Ford.

Other bidders have agreed to manufacture fertilizer at Muscle Shoals, upon the same terms, to pay $76,660,000 more for the power sites at the Shoals than Ford offers in a 100-year period, and to leave the rest of the giant project as the property of the Government. Other bidders, moreover, propose to distribute the tremendous electrical energy generated at Muscle Shoals to millions of people, at rates fixed and regulated by the Government, while Ford's contract will permit him to use all the power for his own industries.

"Cost Plus 8 Per Cent."

The average business man, in seeking to buy something cheap at "cost plus 8 per cent," naturally inquires first what is the cost to which the 8 per cent is added.
Ford's enthusiastic friends have never bothered about that detail.
In the early stages of the Ford bid's presentation it was indicated Ford proposed to produce nitrogen for fertilizer at Nitrate Plant No.
2, which the Government built during the war. This admitted —the cyanide process—but it was dependable where cost was not an important element, and nitrogen was needed for munitions at any price.

The other plant, No. 1, was designed to apply a more modern and more economical method of air fixation—the Haber synthetic ammonia process—but this was a failure.

Tests conducted by the War Department indicated that sulphate of ammonia for use in fertilizer could be produced at Nitrate Plant No. 2 for $29.73 per ton, without allowance for interest, depreciation, obsolescence, insurance and taxes.

Any manufacturer, in determining his cost, would add 15 per cent for these items, making the cost $45.75 per ton. Add 8 per cent profit and you have $49.41 per ton. Add to that about $6 more in patent royalties which must be paid to the company controlling the process and you have Muscle Shoals "cheap fertilizer" at $55.41 per ton.

At the time these tests were made, by-product ammonium sulphate from the coke ovens of American industries was selling at $45 per ton.

$67,000,000 Is Necessary.

Even Ford's engineers admit now, however, that Nitrate Plant No. 2 at Muscle Shoals is obsolete, and that it must be practically wiped off the ground before it can be used for this purpose by any other process.

Since Nitrate Plant No. 2 cost the Government $67,000,000 and its annual capacity is precisely the 40,000 tons of sulphate which Ford is obligated to produce, it follows that Ford must expend approximately something like that to erect another nitrogen fixation plant.

Any manufacturer in figuring his cost is not going to fail to figure an investment of millions as entering into the cost, and "cost plus 8 per cent," seems a more dubious and less attractive possibility without Nitrate Plant No. 2 than with it.

There is considerable doubt in the minds of recognized authorities on the subject as to whether the air fixation process of producing nitrogen will prove profitable com-mercially in peace time as far as the United States is concerned.
There are two reasons—the two great sources of nitrogen on which we depend, the by-product of coke ovens and the sodium nitrate beds of Chile.

War Department's View.
Ammonium sulphate is a by-product of coke ovens and producer gas plants that must be removed from the gas because of the harmful action of ammonia on brass and copper fittings and the characteristic pungent odor. Its cost, says a War Department bulletin on nitrogen fixation, "is largely a matter of book-keeping, and the cost of the by-product of coke ovens and the sodium nitrate beds
of Chile."

LODGE PROPOSAL ATTEMPT TO TORPEDO WORLD COURT
PLAN, KING TELLS SENATE

Utah Member Introduces New Resolution for U. S. Adhesion to Tribunal, Suggesting Amendments.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—"Further progress" was reported by members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today after a second two-hour executive session devoted to consideration of the several proposals dealing with adherence by the United States to a world court. Again no indication was given as to the probability of an early report.

The committee considered briefly the Lodge plan which would involve creation of an entirely new organization, and one proposed by Senator Loriot (Rep., Wisconsin).
Adjournment was taken subject to call, but members indicated a definite proposal would be reported before the session is terminated.

Senator Pepper (Rep., Pennsylvania) laid before the committee today tentative drafts of amendments to the plan proposed by Presidents Harding and Coolidge, designed to define the jurisdiction of the court in rendering advisory opinions; to place election of Judges in the hands of the signatories to the court protocol, rather than in the hands of the League; and to make no representation at all to the League of Nations.

Charging in the Senate that the World Court proposal put forward by Senator Lodge was an apparent attempt to torpedo the Harding-Coolidge World Court recommendation, Senator King (Dem., Utah), offered an amended court resolution for reference to the committee. It is identical with the one that failed at the last session, except that in place of reservations it proposes amendments to the World Court statute.

The resolution presented by King would declare adherence to the World Court statute, "excepting therefrom the optional clause for compulsory jurisdiction; such adherence to be upon the condition that the statute of the permanent court of international justice be first amended to empower the United States to participate through representatives designated for the purpose and upon an equality with the other states." In any and all proceedings for the election of members of the permanent court of international justice, or for the filling of vacancies, and to provide that the statute of the permanent court of international justice shall not be amended without the consent of the United States.

It also would be declared that the admission "does not constitute an assumption by the United States of any of the obligations" of the League of Nations covenant.

WASHINGTON, May 22.— Amendments as a substitute for reservations to the World Court project is the latest innovation calculated to prevent any real action on the plan to have the United States join the international tribunal.

Senator Pepper (Rep.) of Pennsylvania has been entrusted with the job of preparing the new resolution which is to satisfy President Coolidge and thereby head off what otherwise would be an awkward situation, when the Republican national convention formulates its platform. That is all it is intended to accomplish, for there is no thought of letting anything definite be done by the Senate before adjournment.

After the conventions the amendment feature is depended on to hold things up as long as necessary. They would probably compel many unbecomingly a plomatic exchanges between this country and the League of Nations, but it probably will be contended that until the United States has assurance that the court will be changed to agree with the conditions it makes for its entrance, there would be no use of its taking any action.

In effect, this gets back pretty close to the Lodge proposal that the President call a new Hague court.

Would Discontinue Advice.
The two principal amendments are to provide that the court cease to render advisory opinions for the League of Nations, and that the nations party to the court have the same representation on the bodies of American industry, which mean either that Great Britain must eliminate her self-governing colonies or that the United States should have six votes to make up for Australia, Canada, India, New Zealand and South Africa.

As eight out of nine decisions rendered by the international court have been advisory, the extent of the suggested changes may be appreciated.

The argument for elimination of the advisory decisions is based on a hypothetical case of Japan referring the matter of the exclusion of her subjects from the United States to the League of Nations, which might ask the court for an opinion. Should this opinion happen to be in favor of Japan, while it would not be binding on this country it would have the moral effect of so binding the United States to world criticism.

The counter argument is that the court already has had a case involving Russia, and declined to give an advisory opinion because Russia was not represented at the proceedings. This is cited as a precedent by which if America merely abstained from appearing in a case a decision would be avoided.

The tentative plan to check agitation for adoption of the Harding-Hughes-Coolidge proposal and keep it from complicating the coming campaign, came out of the consideration yesterday by the Foreign Relations Committee of Senator Swanson's resolution providing for American adherence to the court as President Harding recommended that Mr. Harding incorporated in his message. Swanson is a Virginia Democrat.

Swanson Forced Action.

The committee will go on with its consideration with no undue haste. The Harding proposal has been before it for a solid year, and it would be sleeping there yet if Swanson had not served notice that unless there were action pretty quick he would move the discharge of the committee and bring the matter directly to the Senate. It would be embarrassing to the Republicans to have to fight a proposition that had been brought to them by two Republican Presidents.

There was nothing in the proposal as it came from the White House, about discontinuing advisory opinions to the League, with which the United States could have no concern as long as it was not a member of the League. The Hughes reservations were: (1) That American adherence to the court should involve the United States in no legal relation or obligation to the League; (2) That the United States should have equality with States and members of the League in voting for judges; (3) That the

THE three photographs reproduced above are made from prints of the negatives fashioned by electricity sent over telephone wires from Cleveland to New York City. One picture is a likeness of President Coolidge; the second, Cleveland's new Public Hall, and the third a bridge over Cuyahoga River, Cleveland. No retouch-ing of any kind has been attempted on the photographs. The straight-line effect is due to the use of a screen which is necessary in the transmission apparatus. This straight line is "cut up" by the use of the half tone dot, but by holding the newspaper at arm's length a better idea can be had of the photographic values of these pictures as sent by electricity over land wires.

United States would pay its share of the expenses of the court as determined by the League of Nations, and (4) That the court statute should not be amended.

G. A. MILLER OF SOUTH AMERICA ELECTED METHODIST BISHOP

Wins on Fourth Ballot and Probably Will Be Assigned to Mexico City.

By the Associated Press.
SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 22.— George A. Miller of South America was elected bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church today on the fourth ballot. Bishop-elect Miller received 570 votes, with 551 necessary for election. The Rev.
Titus Lowe of Nebraska was second with 542, and the Rev. George R. Grose, president of the De Pauw University, Indiana, was third with 494. It was said that Bishop-elect Miller would probably be sent to the residence at Mexico City.

He was born in Madison, Ill., in 1868, and graduated from Leland Stanford University in 1898.
The committee on the state of the church yesterday took what was interpreted as a step toward liberalization of the divorce laws.
It recommended a resolution forbidding ministers to marry the guilty parties in divorce suits for infidelity, or any persons "mentally, morally or physically unfit." It is thought that ministers under this rule would feel free to marry persons divorced on grounds other than infidelity.

Bishop Francis J. McConnell appeared by invitation before the committee on temporal economy to present his views on the proposed abolition of the Federation for Social Service, of which he is president. The federation has been charged with the circulation of radical propaganda in the guise of social service bulletins.

did not square with the church's

Caraway Charges Him With Senator.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Opponents of modification of the Volstead act to permit 2.75 per cent of alcoholic content in beverage made a general attack on pending bills which would provide for a change in the act yet hearings before the House Judiciary Committee on the question.

Chairman Graham at adjournment yesterday announced that the taking of testimony had been completed, but arguments of counsel would be heard before the committee began framing its report.

Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, led in the attack, asserting that the prohibition enforcement is not a failure.

"The record of 1923," he declared,
"shows that fines of more than $5-000,000 and jail sentences amounting to 2541 years were imposed and 34,667 convictions obtained. The liquor tax penalties and assessments amount to approximately $40,000,000. The lower the alcoholic content of beverages, the lower the jail penalties."

"Remus (the Cincinnati bootleger sentenced to Atlanta) and the other millionaires and public officials who are behind the bars today, for violation of this law, can testify that prohibition is much more effective than its enemies wish it were."

Says Students Are Dry.
Declaring that "the overwhelming majority of American students are heartily in favor of the prohibition law as it now stands and are opposed to any modification," Harry S. Warner, general secretary of the Prohibition League, said that the introduction of this law is not ripe for modification, as the law has not had a real test. Such drinking as exists is "spectacular and exceptional and done in the spirit of adventure," he said, adding that habitual drinking in colleges does not exist.

Representative O'Sullivan (Dem.) of Connecticut developed, by questioning the witness, that straw votes in Harvard, Yale and Columbia universities resulted in a majority for modification, but Warner explained that this was confined to "east of the river and the Hudson river, and the rest of the country was in the majority."

Mrs. Grace Holden of Perth, Western Australia, testified that Australia had not had a fair chance to register prohibition sentiment.
During her stay in America, since February, she said, she had seen intoxicated men, and that in Baltimore, she added.

Replying to statistics quoted by Wheeler, Representative O'Sullivan maintained that in some cities for 1923, arrests for intoxication and liquor violation would show an increase over 1922. Wheeler retorted by stating that there was a propaganda effort to make a good showing for prohibition.

Denies Having Pledges.

The Connecticut Representative then called attention to an article in the American Issue, in which he said Dr. Sam Small wrote, concerning the introduction of the 2.75 beer bills: "Of course such performances will get nowhere in a Congress that has 57 Senators and 242 Representatives, pledged in black and white by their own signature to wholly ignore such bills."

Wheeler denied that the Anti-Saloon League had any such record, to his knowledge.
"Would you employ the use of prohibition? asked O'Sullivan.
"If it reached the point of rebellion, yes," answered Wheeler. "But will not be necessary to do it." There are too many law-abiding persons in the country."

"Do you consider 2.75 cider intoxicating?" pursued O'Sullivan.
"Yes."

Representative Hill (Rep.) of Maryland, leader of the so-called "wet bloc," developed, by questioning Wheeler, that the Volstead act permits home use of fruit juices, which are intoxicating in fact, and are above one-half of 1 per cent in alcoholic content.Hill was permitted to insert in the record a communication from the Census Bureau that "there are 31 states which have a percentage of foreign born higher than that for Maryland."WAYNE WHEELER

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Bus Line Extensions.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

As the representative of the Jennings Heights Improvement Association and some of the other local associations in Northwest St. Louis, to take such steps as were possible to secure the extension of the Lee avenue car and bus company lines out into Northwest St. Louis, I had occasion to examine the enclosed ordinance, No. 30911, defining motor busses and providing for the licensing of them in St. Louis.

This ordinance, you will observe, provides for operation under a permit by the bus company. Section 6 of the ordinance virtually makes this permit an exclusive one. The word "permit" is used, but to all intents and purposes in this connection, the right is a franchise. Section 5 of the ordinance provides that there can be no revocation until after a public hearing. This section is somewhat obscure and leaves the question open as to whether or not the permit can be revoked without good cause, the necessary implication being that if the bus company is entitled to a hearing, it would be without purpose, unless the city were compelled to show that the bus company violated its permit. Whatever interpretation, however, may be put on this section, it undoubtedly would make it a difficult matter to revoke a permit once granted.

Whether this form of authorizing the bus company to use the streets of St.
Louis is more desirable or less desirable than a straight franchise is a question for consideration. I do not think that there is any substantial difference. It has occurred to me, however, that there is no provision in the ordinance for the extension of bus facilities, except upon the application of the bus company. In view of the fact that the bus company is proposing to enlarge its service to city-wide proportions, I would suggest that there should be a provision in the ordinance or permit to the bus company, providing for future extensions upon request of the proper authorities of the City of St. Louis, so as to take care of future development in the city and county. This is too important a question to be left to the sole whim or judgment of the bus company.

I take this occasion to urge that your paper take this same position with regard to the pending permit to the People's Bus Co. That matter is before the Board of Public Service for settlement at present, and if such a plan is to be adopted, it must be adopted at this time. CHRISTY M. FARRAR.

The Greatness of Bendit.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

NOTICED in your issue of May 15 that you placed "Bendit" on our comic page. You have Bendit, thus raising cheers for being the town that can not be excelled for booze and soft drink joints.

Yes, I will admit that Bendit is the basis for your poor desert-stricken Mis-sourians. However, we here at St. Louis have more important things to feel proud of.

We have a champion independent football team that beat your St. Louis All Stars.

We have a champion independent basket ball team.

We have a champion baseball club now playing.

Last Saturday our Bendit High School boys won nine medals at the Mississippi Valley Intercollegiate Track Meet at Washington University.

Miss Anne Grodzak, a pupil of Bendit Township High School, has been acclaimed the best typist in the State of Illinois. She gained this distinction in the State contest held at the State College at Bloomington last Saturday. She reached a speed of 93.67 words per minute for three minutes and 91.1 words per minute for 15 minutes of straight copy work.

This is not all—only space does not permit any more.

SAM BARNEY.

Another Dark Danger Spot.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It is my humble opinion that one human life is worth more than all the money in the world.

I believe if there had been an ordinary 50-watt electric bulb in Gamble Playgrounds, Miss Margulisa would be alive today, or there would be a definite clue to work on at last.

The exact conditions existing in the Margulisa case prevailed in the Edna Ellis and Marie Bowers cases.

We have another "unlighted spot," also a playground, in the vicinity where I reside—the Riddick Playgrounds, adjoining the Riddick public school at 4200 Kavanaugh avenue. The alley at the rear of the playground and school is a menace, not only to the school children, but to the residents on Page boulevard, who fear to use it after dark.

It is truly an ideal "unlighted spot" for a degenerate to commit another foul crime similar to those described above.

Let us begin to install "life savers," i.e., 60 cent electric bulbs in these "unlighted spots" and at least eliminate the Ellis, Bowers and Margulisa type of cases.

MR. MOORE STANDS FOURSQUARE.

George H. Moore, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Missouri, has earned the commendation of all right-thinking citizens who stand for American principles by openly and unqual-ifiedly denouncing the Ku Klux Klan by name and all similar secret organizations which proscribe citizens on account of race or religion. Mr. Moore is the first candidate for Governor who has the honor and credit of taking this public position.

Referring to the records of the Democratic party and following the teachings of its great founder, Thomas Jefferson, in opposing intolerance whenever it has raised its head, Mr. Moore said:

Any secret organization with a political purpose attempting to proscribe citizens because of religious belief or accident of paternity is engaged in a conspiracy against the homogeneity of our people, in which rests the very foundation of a popular Government. I am not a klanman and would never be a member of any organization of a secret nature with a political purpose. The very existence of a secret political organization affords a cloak or shield for those who may desire to wreak private vengeance or vent their spleen. When the Democratic party ceases to take strong position against every attempt to divide or proscribe citizens along religious lines or racial lines it will cease to be true to the principles of its great founders.

We commend this declaration to every candidate for office, whether Republican or Democratic. It is to be regretted that Dr. Arthur W. Nelson, another Democratic candidate for Governor, who, with Mr. Moore, addressed the Democratic Women's Club of this city, was silent on this subject.
It is a fair assumption that Dr. Nelson, with this example before him, either wants the support of the Ku Klux Klan, or at least is unwilling or afraid to oppose it.

The fight against the Klan's attempt to control the political parties is making progress at least in the Democratic party. Senator Underwood has not only openly and unqualifiedly condemned the Ku Klux Klan and all its works, but has declared that he will carry the fight into the national Democratic convention at New York. No party can afford to ignore the issue of racial and religious discrimination raised by the Ku Klux Klan's political activities, least of all the Democratic party, which, as Mr. Moore says, when it "ceases to take a strong position against every attempt to divide or proscribe citizens along religious lines or racial lines, ceases to be true to the principles of its great founders."

The way to put the Klan out of its nefarious activities and to kill intolerance is for every party and every candidate to repudiate it. The voters should repudiate the party or the candidate refusing to stand on this sound American platform.

CITY EXPANSION IN EARNEST.

The question of city expansion has ripened to the point where the leaders of community affairs and community interests can no longer afford to ignore it. The Chamber of Commerce, with the co-operation of a committee from the county, will take up the matter in earnest and finance and organize the project for a constitutional enabling amendment to be enacted by popular initiative.

This is most encouraging news. There can be no opposition to the amendment from other than special interests, and in a State-wide election these will have hard sledding. The chamber project supercedes that of Hugh Wagner and the Greater St. Louis Conference. Wagner, however, will join forces with the new movement. There is room for all and credit enough for all in the cause of freeing St. Louis of its senseless and archaic geographical fetters.

DR. ELLIOT'S MAINE.

In explaining his change of heart as to prohibition Dr. Elliot of Harvard turns back to the nineties of the last century when he was accustomed to spend his vacations in Maine. As he remembers it, the majority of the people of Maine were strong for prohibition, but in the fashionable resorts where the summer colonists foregathered life tripped along to the obligate of popping corks.
From this observation the futility of State prohibition was borne in upon Dr. Elliot. He realized that no state could be dry while its neighbors were wet. To have drouth anywhere we must have drouth everywhere. It was a national enterprise.
Accordingly when the opportunity came for the nation to undertake the experiment Dr. Elliot indorsed the movement.

The distinguished educator's reasoning is plausible, but his premise as to the majority sentiment of Maine is, we believe, as faulty as is his conclusion as to the efficacy of the national adventure.
We really believe the doctor has done an injustice to the native sons of Maine. That there were sincere, devout and practicing prohibitionists in Maine in the vanished nineties may be conceded. It may be acknowledged that the president of a university would be more likely to meet those rare birds than would an underclassman. But Dr.
Elliot is thoroughly mistaken in assuming that the prohibition laws of Maine were broken only by the summer colonists in the fin de siecle.

Through that final decade of the nineteenth century—blazered, sashed and flanneled—Maine's genius flowered rather dominantly. Tom Reed's epigrams were embellishing the Washington news, the promised filling of the dinner pail had been intrusted to Dingley, Frye's eloquence commanded the applause of listening Senators, the Plumed Knight, despite his Waterloo, was a pulsant, if tragic, figure, and Gail Hamilton's essays had a charm that contested honors with Samoa. A sort of renaissance which must have entranced a student like Dr. Elliot, who in his absorption probably missed other attainments of Maine. The fact escaped him, doubtless, that in more than one Maine town the public library was maintained from the fines regularly levied against saloons. And he splendid rite—a Maine guide preparing a hot buttered rum.

As brewed in Maine that hot buttered rum was the pluperfect nightcap, superior, we venture, to anything Antonious may have served on the em-purpled heights. Had Dr. Elliot known the gastatory delight and spiritual solace of that noble cup he would never have been beguiled by the water wagon's insipid inducements.

THE FAITH OF THE PEOPLE.

Senator Watson, addressing the Indiana State Republican convention, deprecates the Washington investigations because, he says, they break down the faith of the American people in their institutions; they "chill enterprise" and hurt business.

Except in the imaginations of administration apologists we have noted no attacks on fundamental institutions on account of the investigations.
Popular faith in our institutions has not been lost, but in the type of politician which has been developed at the unwitting sufferance of the people faith has been justifiably shattered.

Take, for instance, Senator Watson himself. He has nothing but reproach for the men who have ferreted out such a volume of rottenness in the administration that the popular mind has been surfeited. Then he says the people have grown weary with "the flow of gossip and the flood of scandal." Trying to shield the Republicans he asserts that "the personal guilt of an isolated individual" is not a party matter. It is quite a party matter, however, when the administration spokesmen spend all their dismay over the fact that their fellow partisans were caught rather than that they were guilty.

The people, says Watson, have not been deceived into believing that "muddling is statesmanship." Nor, we hope, will they be deceived into the belief that Senator Watson's policy of concealing and so condoning corruption, or his unblinking surrender to the Indiana Ku Klux, is statesmanship.

The faith of the people in their institutions is not to be measured by their loss of faith in the Ku Klux and bonus Senators. In the corruptionists and their apologists in the administration; these gentry are the enemies of our institutions, and their exposure and defeat are necessary to their stability.

ORATORY AND STALEMATE.

Hard times have come to the coal miners of Illinois. Most of the mines are closed, to stay closed until the approach of cold weather revives demand for fuel and justifies resumption. For several months the miners will have to live on their savings, or on credit, or their earnings in other lines of work, or do without.

But this applies only to the workers. Times are good right now for the talkers. They are having their annual oratorical meet at Peoria, Ill., which is costing the workers $1172 an hour, or $3204 a seven-and-a-half-hour day.

There are 562 delegates to the convention, each of whom is paid $14.60 a day. The longer they talk the more they will get. The bills are paid by the workers, most of whom are unemployed.

The cost will not be too great, however, if out of the high-priced oratory comes a solution of the situation which is keeping the mines and the miners idle, while miners in competing fields are working and mines are producing.

Illinois operators say the mines are idle because the cost of production is so great in the Illinois field that they cannot compete with other fields where the cost is much less. And the competitive fields are union fields, too. The miners' explanation of the lower wages in the Kentucky-Tennessee union field is that they are necessitated to enable competition with the nonunion fields with their still lower production cost.

So it comes to this: that the Illinois field is organized to a standstill, with both operators and miners losing money, while the mines of other fields are operating and the miners of other fields are working. For lower wages, it is true, but working.

Senator Watson says the standard of official conduct under Calvin Coolidge was never higher. Interesting if true, but what has Calvin had to do with it?

A DISARMED CITIZENRY.

Armed with pistols which, according to a Police Department official of high standing, they do not obtain from mail order houses, preferring to carry weapons of the deadliest kind, our bandits and gunmen appear to have things all their own way.
A mere boy holds up nearly a score of filling stations, meeting with no resistance. Very rarely does the citizen "get the draw" on the highway or robber. Indeed, he does not seem even to try this old trick, which frequently saved property or life in former days. Why?

In the interesting discussion on crime and pistol toting, in the Letters column, a writer who describes himself as a "coach of high school rifle and revolver clubs" urges teaching men and women the use of firearms. He would revive the old-time skill in the use of pistols. This for the citizen's defense.
And he would have every police officer a crack shot. "In this way we would have a citizenship who would not be at the mercy of cowardly, rat-faced bandits preying on defenseless men and women; also a police force that would not be a menace to innocent people every time they had occasion to draw gun."

Police men are taught to shoot, although some never learn. But the citizen has been disarmed.
He does not expect to defend himself. The law against carrying concealed pistols is obeyed by most citizens, but invariably disobeyed by criminals. And yet the advocates of pistol prohibition would go further in the way of disarming the citizens, although they know, from experience with liquor prohibition, that the lawless would still get weapons by bootleg and other underground methods.

Is it not bad enough that the citizens, practically disarmed, have come to the point of offering no defense of themselves and their property against marauders and murderers? Would it not be better to encourage the use, by persons of good character and standing, of the only weapon fitted to meet the bandit on equal terms? It would then be a case of nerve and quickness, but the bandit would know that he might expect trouble. Under present conditions, it is a "walk-over" for him.

The trouble with the President's control of Congress is that he has too many favors to ask before

MR. ANTWERP'S OPINION.

"Of course, you all know they had a horse race in Kentucky the other day," Mr. Antwerp said. "It was attended by the usual phenomena—that is, betting, etc.—but there was something else."
"It is this something else I want to speak of. After the race was over and all bets had been paid the trainer of Bracendale, one of Mr. Sinclair's horses, declared this horse, gunning unplaced by the judges, really finished second. He explained this by pointing out that from their position in the judges' stand the judges easily overlooked Bracendale, who finished on the rail and therefore suffered in the judgment from too-low visibility. A photograph of the finish seems to substantiate this claim.

"Those things don't happen. We all have our characteristics. The Scotch are tight.
The Eskimos like blubber. The Russians are simple. The Greeks are avaricious.
Yankies are wily. Missourians are windy. Missourians have to be shown.
The French are scrappy. The British don't know when they are licked. The Irish are sentimental. Kentuckians are judges of a horse race.

"There may be photographs indicating that a gold mine rolled through Glasgow and nobody saw it; or news that somebody had started a new religion in Palestine and the Jews were not interested in it; or rumors that a new island had been found in the sea and the British were not already in possession of it. I would not believe them. I would say that these things are all against what we know of those people.
"So I think Bracendale finished wherever the judges said he finished," Mr. Antwerp said.

HOW TO PREVENT BANK FAILURES.

(Cape Missourian.)
In China they still have an ancient law by which, when a bank fails, the banker is beheaded. This may seem barbarous to some Americans. But only one bank has failed in China in 400 years.

PRICE'S RAID.

(Sikeston, Mo., Standard.)
One of the questions put to the 22,998 teachers in the public schools of Missouri, at an examination conducted recently through the State Department of Education, was this:
"Trace Price's raid through Missouri in 1864. What was accomplished?"

Most of the teachers wrote satisfactory replies, but some balked or sidestepped.
One pedagogue, apparently having in mind Price's baking powder, gave this indefinite answer: "Price's raid through Missouri in 1864 was concerning the pure food law." Another, disregarding the date, wrote: "I never heard tell of Price's raid. I don't pay very much attention to prohibition agents." Still another went somewhat in detail and considerably outside of Missouri, thus: "A. Price, the Governor of South Carolina, refused to pay duties on goods coming in from England. He raised an army of a few of the farmers and raided the country and the county courthouse.
He burned many buildings. His raid had to be settled by military forces sent out by the Governor. Price was thrown into prison.
No important results."

POORLY PAID POSTAL SERVICE.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

CONGRESS has been asked to pass a $70,000,000 appropriation for increased salaries for postal employees. The men affected are the most deserving in the department. They include clerks and carriers, none of whom may be considered overpaid and all of whom are important links in the chain of business and social intercourse throughout the country. President Coolidge in vetoing the Bureau bill offering increased Civil War pensions served notice on the Senate Congressmen that if they wish to catch votes with United States currency they must at least keep their hands out of the taxpayers' pocket.

This has been taken to indicate that the President has determined to veto salary increases as well. The letter carrier and mail clerk, however, are not political self-boosters, and they have the support of civil bodies and public men throughout the country because their cause is just. These postal employees have worked hard and faithfully in a department which is a great public service not necessarily obligated to make a profit. The high morale of the force is vital to national welfare and cannot be bolstered up by rigidly adhering to low wages. The public does not wish to see a raise in postal rates. At the same time, the feeling is universal that economies elsewhere might easily be effected to provide more pay for these underpaid and faithful public servants.

BRITISH VIEW OF JAPANESE EX- CLUSION.

From the London Times.

THE country that has taken most offense at the new legislation is undoubtedly Japan. The Japanese previously held a privileged position, in that they were the only Asiatics who were legally permitted to entry into America. Now they are to be displaced by the Chinese, Koreans, Indonese, and others, and the Japanese are excluded. It is easy to understand the mortification which is felt in Tokyo, and one may sympathize with the Japanese in this, that neither their part in the maintenance of the "Open Door" nor their part in the maintenance of the "Two Great Powers" has been anything to do with the new disabilities imposed upon them, which to a certain extent may be held to detract from the position of pre-eminence in the Eastern world which their achievements had won. The cause of exclusion is elemental, and must be recognized with in any sane estimate of probable developments in the Far East. There is no need to anticipate immediate untoward results from the action of the American parliament. It is the logical evolution of recent events, which during and immediately after the war led them to realize the danger of foreign elements in their midst, and the advantages to American workers of a strengthened labor market. The law, passed after the war, which restricted immigration to 3 per cent of the national total of 1910 in any case lapses this year, and is only being re-enacted in more drastic form. The Japanese, excluded hitherto by a mutual understanding, are now to be barred entry by law. While the immediate consequences of this policy will probably be great, its ultimate effects may be

His "Modification" of Jazz

I f a street cleaner should stop beneath your casement window and sing "Mamma Goes Where Papa Goes" or some equally disjointed jazz ditty, his performance might hit your fancy of the moment so that you would applaud him to the encore point. But if, instead of singing another song, he should attempt to assure you that what you had heard was "the new American music" and much superior to grand opera, your judgment in all probability would be that while his singing was good his theory was bad and you would give him summary dismissal or ask him to slow away his argument and sing another song.

To St. Louis last night came Paul Whiteman and his 25 instrumentalists and gave a concert to a capacity house at the Odeon. Though for several years Whiteman has been recognized as the leading exponent of jazz music, he is now on tour to demonstrate this proposition as stated in his program: "Some 10 years ago a blatant method of treating music was introduced to the American public which came to be known as jazz. The tremendous strides which have been made in modifying this treatment, proving that the term jazz, though still applied to the melodic music of today, is a misnomer."

After listening to the program which was given in demonstration of this proposition it was impossible to escape the conclusion that Whiteman, a master showman, had his tongue in his cheek and that his seemingly terrific awe at the goose which laid his golden egg was after all only a gentle love tap. Watching him closely, it was apparent that he was not at all perturbed and best satisfied with his performance when he was putting his musicians through their antics as jazz contortionists.

He fairly beamed on the veranda. His orchestra, who showed his virtuous versatility by playing 12 different reed instruments with corresponding stridency. He seemed with difficulty to restrain himself from clapping in brotherly embrace the nimble-fingered "Mama Goes Where Papa Goes" pianist who got more plunked out of a banjo than any plunker in captivity. To be sure, if the program could be believed, these sterling jazz performers were being used up as horse examples. For were they not illustrating "jazz" as a beautiful music by being ruined by "jazzing"?

Take for instance Schonberger's "Whispering," a beautiful melody which it would be difficult to play unexpressively even on a lever harp. Whiteman first played this in what he called "true form." It was his chosen shining example of his orchestra's ability to play "straight music." The orchestra was plainly under double wraps, but even at its rendition was far from "straight," as judged, say, by the standards of a symphony popular concert. They could not suppress all of the howls, grunts and squeals.

And then, with an odd mixture of deprecation and gusto, the leader poised his baton again for a demonstration of how "Whispering" might be "spiced" by jazz treatment. As if by a convulsive break for freedom the orchestra sounded those double wraps and went to it. If the earlier version had been strident, this one was a mental mob scene. The mood of the music increased in volume the mood of the leader and it must also be said, the mood of the audience approached the point of ecstasy.

That was the point where one first began to suspect the tongue in the cheek. Along with this also came the suspicion that "ruining" the music by jazz treatment is one of the best things this orchestra does and that the pretense of uplift is just a bit of clever showmanship. This impression grew as the evening wore on. The very setting and lighting of the stage heightened it. There were circus implications in the white and vermilion color scheme of the platform, the two grand pianos and the director's stand.

On these rare occasions, when the exhausted wood winds and brasses, the effect was exactly that of a circus band and one looked around for the elephants and camels in the grand entry parade and half expected to hear the raucous cries of the sideshow ballyhoo and the lemonade hawkers.

There were frank appropriations of themes from Handel's "Messiah" and a perversion of "The Carnival of Venice" which permitted the virtuoso of 12 reed instruments to do his worst in contributing his bit to a hideous whole. After this number it would have been difficult for Whiteman or anyone else to convince a music lover that he was doing anything to uplift the art.

PRESENTED AT BRITISH COURT

MISS GEORGETTE MADILL.

MORE AMERICANS ARE PRESENTED AT COURT

Former St. Louis Girl Among Those at Second Function at Buckingham.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 22.—King George and Queen Mary held their second court of the season last night. Generally, it followed the line of Tuesday night's court. The function was favored with beautiful summer weather and again large crowds gathered in the vicinity of Buckingham Palace to see the guests arrive.

Tuesday night's presentations to the King and Queen were mainly from the diplomatic and official circles. Last night they were mainly from the general circle, and included a number of Americans.

Among the Americans introduced were Mrs. R. Armistead Davis, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Deming Jarvis, residing at Dinard, France; Mrs. John R. Kendrick, wife of Senator Kendrick of Wyoming; Miss Rosamaye Kendrick, their daughter; Miss Helen Crocker, San Francisco, and Miss Georgette Madill, Washington, D. C., formerly of St. Louis.

King George wore the uniform of the Scots Guards. Queen Mary was attired in a shimmering gown of wedgewood blue and silver brocade, which in the brilliant light gave the illusion of moonlight on moving water. The train of the gown was of shot silver tulle, draped with old point de Valence lace and embroidered with fleur-de-lis in diamonds. The Queen wore a pearl and diamond coronet and diamond ornaments, including the famous Kohinoor and the Order of the Garter.

Miss Madill did Red Cross work. Miss Madill is the daughter of Mrs. Edward S. Robert. Her father was the late Judge George A. Madill, who was president of the Union Trust Co. when it erected the building at Seventh and Olive streets, now known as the Union Trust and now as the Central National Bank Building.

In recent years Miss Madill and her mother have spent their time in foreign travel and residence abroad. Their passage on the steamship Titanic on its fatal maiden voyage in 1912.

Miss Madill spent a year in Japan, assisting in a missionary enterprise. Following the World War she worked in Russia, and was assigned to a refugee colony on Russian Island, in the Sea of Japan, near Vladivostok. She was in charge for five months of one of four barracks which housed 700 refugee children.

MUSICAL TEA AT WOMEN'S CLUB TODAY

Last Current Topics Meeting of Season to Be Held in Ball Room.

THE last current topics meeting of the season at the St. Louis Woman's Club will take place this afternoon, and instead of the regular luncheon and speaker, the entertainment will be a musical tea. Small tables will be placed in the ballroom, where refreshments will be served at the close of the program. The St. Louis Woman's Club will furnish the hostesses. The program will include Mrs. A. N. De Mott, John B. Shapleigh, Roland Hill, Thomas B. Crews, William A. Van Slyke, Joseph S. Caffey, J. O. King, P. H. Cullen, Leland Boogher, Clarence Maloy, James A. Webb, Oscar Niedringhaus, Benjamin S. Pearson, W. K. Kavanaugh, R. G. Craig, Violet A. Hall, C. H. Laessle, E. Ewing White, George F. McNulty, E. J. Kramer, Walter B. Ver Steeg and Miss Grace Adams.

A WEDDING of interest in St. Louis which took place in the New York yesterday, was that of Mrs. Maie Bennett Kimball, formerly of St. Louis, widow of Charles Edmonds Kimball, and Charles Halstead Mapes of New York. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride, 180 West Fifty-Ninth street, by Suffragan Bishop Herbert Shipman, in the presence of the immediate families and a few friends. The bride was unattended. Henry M. Alexander was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Alden Kimball of 470 Lake avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Kimball of 525 Clara avenue, sons and daughters-in-law of the bride, went East for the wedding.

Mr. Mapes is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Mapes of New York. He is a graduate of Columbia University, class of 1935, and during his college career was intercollegiate champion athlete.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Garrison of the Chase Apartments, will depart the first week in June for a "questing" trip. They will be accompanied by Mrs. Garrison's mother, Mrs. Billingsley, at her cottage. Mrs. McAllister Wilcox of Denver, who has been visiting Mrs. Garrison for a few days on route to her home in Europe, will depart with them.

Mrs. R. Vernon Clark of 5254 Westminster place, was hostess at a farewell luncheon today for 24 guests, in honor of Mrs. John W. MacIvor, and Mrs. W. N. Bemis, both of whom, with their families, will sail in June to spend the summer abroad. Mr. and Mrs. Clark, with their daughter, Miss Alma and Elizabeth, and their son, Richard, will leave St. Louis about June 15 for their cottage at Charlevoix, Mich., to remain until fall.

Miss Peyton Hawes, daughter of Congressman and Mrs. Harry B. Hawes of 35 Vandewater place, will entertain 26 guests at a bridge party this afternoon in honor of Miss Marie Reid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Reid of the Forest Park Hotel, whose engagement to C. Gordon Fennell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil G. Fennell, was announced recently. Miss Hawes will spend the summer at the "Lodge," a girls' camp, at Three Lakes, Wis. Miss Eppes Hawes has just returned from Louisville, where she visited friends and attended the Derby.

Mmes. George Gellhorn, Ira Bretzfelder, Everts A. Graham and Virgil Loeb of the Missouri Social Hygiene Association have invited presidents of several women's organizations to luncheon Tuesday at the College Club. Plans will be formulated for a Social Hygiene Institute to be held in St. Louis next November.

Mrs. Frank Y. Gladney of 5037 Westminster place departed Monday for Denver for a brief visit with relatives and friends.

Miss Alice Wilson of Chicago is visiting her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Riley, 1614 Bellevue avenue.

Enthusiastic Crowd Forces Largest After a mercurial intermission Whiteman put forth a suite of serenades which, as explained in the program, were "Victor Herbert's first compositions for the modern American orchestra." There were teasing and haunting suggestions of Spanish, Chinese, Cuban and Oriental serenades, but just when the light of beauty was about to shine through, it was smothered by the howling cornets which had the same sort of uplift which the midnight cat on the back fence puts into his voice.

The regular program closed with a "Rhapsody in Blue" with George Gersehwitz as solo pianist. This was announced as "the first rhapsody written for solo instrument and the modern American orchestra." It was a rather laborious straining of the orchestra and in the orchestra, the net result being mostly noise.

Abroad With the Daily-Mirror-of- Washington Man

A Report Day by Day of His Observations on a Tour of Europe.

By Clinton W. Gilbert.

(Copyright, 1924.)

WHEN I say that the Government of Russia is now in the hands of leaders who, compared to Lenin and Trotsky, are second class men, I do not wish to be understood as suggesting that the Government is weak. It is probably the strongest Government anywhere in the western world today. No observer in Moscow thinks there is the slightest possibility of the soviet system's falling within the next few years.

The present Government has no opposition. It is difficult to see how any opposition can form. Men in the Government are strong enough to question the leadership of Stalin and his associates, are promptly read out of the party. And out of the party one can do nothing politically unless one starts a revolution; and there is no such organized dissatisfaction present as would make a revolution possible. Besides, every day you see some man being marched through the streets with a soldier in front of him and one behind him. He is suspected of political offenses and is being escorted to prison by the G. P. W.—what we would call the secret police, only the revolution struck the whole police force. It is to do things like that, unless whole classes, too numerous to be gathered in line, become disaffected. And there is no sign that any considerable class is disaffected.

On the whole, I should say that Russia was pretty well pleased with its Government. The country has made more progress toward recovery than any other country, and only with Germany is comparison possible, for they are the two countries which suffered most from the war. Moscow looked shabby while I was there; but then, Russia always looked shabby. But it did not seem like a dead city as Berlin does. The people looked cheerful, as the Berlin people do not. The thing that impressed me most about Berlin was a visit to Westphalia, the big department store. In the middle of the afternoon a few people wandered up and down the aisles without buying anything. The saleswomen apparently took it for granted that no one would buy. In Moscow there is no department store comparable to America's large stores. But in the one near the opera house there was the normal activity. People were buying as they would be in an American store of the same size.

Stalin and his associates have for the moment beaten Trotsky. A little later, if they prove unequal to dealing with Russia's economic problems, Trotsky may beat them. Or Dzerzhinsky may rise and be more powerful than either of them. That is the only kind of change one may look for in the Russian Government. But when I say that the soviet Government is strong, I don't want to overlook the elements of weakness there are in any Government which is based upon a hard and fast creed. As the great men who started such a Government disappear its weaknesses become apparent. In lesser hands it becomes too inflexible. Lenin was big enough to start a new economic policy. But are Stalin and his associates big enough to start a still newer economic plan?

QUINN TO SPEAK HERE TONIGHT

National Legion Head to Be Heard at Central High School.

John R. Quinn of Delano, Cal., national commander of the American Legion, will speak in Central High School auditorium at 8 o'clock tonight at a public meeting arranged by St. Louis Legionnaires. The invitation to speak was extended during the national convention last October.

Quinn will arrive at Union Station at 6:30 p. m. and will be taken immediately to the Elks' Club, where legion officials have arranged a dinner. He will depart tonight, after the meeting, for Independence, Kan.

MRS. JAMES E. TAUSSIG

DIES AT FAMILY HOME

Wife of President of Wabash Railroad Expires After Slight Illness.

Mrs. Harriette Holmes Taussig, wife of James E. Taussig, president of the Wabash Railroad, died at their home, 4317 McPherson avenue, at 4:40 a. m. today, after a slight illness which took a sudden turn for the worse Tuesday night.

Taussig was in Chicago yesterday when notified of his wife's condition. He immediately ordered a special Wabash train and departed for St. Louis at 9:30 a. m., less than 30 minutes after he had received the telegram. The train averaged between 50 and 55 miles per hour and arrived at 3:14 p. m., a total run of 5 hours and 45 minutes. The normal running time between St. Louis and Chicago is eight hours.

Funeral services will be held at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Spring avenue and Lindell boulevard, at 10:30 a. m. Saturday. Interment will be private. Mrs. Taussig is survived by her husband and a son, Edward, of Houston, Tex.

PATRIOTIC CRUISE OF WORLD ON GREAT WHITE MOVIE SHIP
Carema Man, Newspaper Man and Scenario Writer to Ask for U. S. Aid in Enterprise.
Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, May 23.—Plans to send around the world a great white ship—which the Government will be asked to donate—bearing patriotic and industrial films and three complete companies for the production of dramatic movies in various countries, will be laid before officials at Washington next month.
The expedition is being promoted by Around the World Productions, a trust organized under Massachusetts laws, with offices at 11 East Forty-fifth street. The chief figures are W. Stuart Forsythe, chairman, an old camera man, and Garfield Thompson, a scenario writer of experience. Edwin Wildman, former newspaper man, is to carry the hope of their movie armada to Washington.
One feature of the expedition is that young men and women who fancy they have screen talent are to be taken along—trained and finally given roles in the productions. To prevent contract jumping, each will be required to hand over $5000. At the end of the cruise each voyager will get his money back, with interest at bank rate.
Forsythe and Thompson have explained that they hope to get contracts from manufacturers for showing industrial films. In every port it is planned, they will give shows daily, free of cost. United States propaganda will be spread throughout the world. Movie rights to 26 stories already are owned by the company, the prospectus says. No stock has been or will be sold in the company, Forsythe declared.

ROADS REDUCE WORKING WEEK

Five-Day Schedule in Lieu of Laying Off Shopmen.

By The Associated Press.
NEW YORK, May 22.—Principal railroad companies throughout the country are considering reducing the working week of their shop forces to five days, rather than reducing the number of employees, says the New York Times. This reduction will be accompanied by a corresponding cut in wages. The Reading already has adopted a shorter week, and the Baltimore & Ohio today put the 20,000 men in its Montclair shops on a five-day basis, the newspaper says.
Improved condition of railway equipment and the decline in business will be the determining factors on each railroad as to when the changes will be made. All such reductions in the days worked will be accompanied by a corresponding cut in pay, since the shop employees are paid on an hourly basis.

CHEAP FERTILIZER BY FORD PLAN SAID TO BE IMPOSSIBLE

um sulphate as a by-product of coal distillation," and further, "there is no fallacy in the statement that the world's supply of combined nitrogen could be more than produced by distilling sufficient coal to meet the requirements."

The annual per capita consumption of bituminous coal in the United States today is about 4,410 tons. This coal when coked in by-product ovens would yield about 20 pounds of combined nitrogen per ton. In other words, 132 pounds of nitrogen per capita may be produced from this source alone, whereas the per capita consumption of nitrogen in the United States is only 2.55 pounds per year. Forty-six times as much nitrogen as we need, then, may be produced from our coal supply alone.

Consider, too, the second great source of our nitrogen, the nitrate beds of Chili, where the product is mined almost in a marketable form. The Chilean Government exacts a 50 per cent export tax on this commodity, which always has controlled the price of nitrate in the United States, and it is indicated this tax will be removed wholly or in part, if necessary to meet air fixation competition.

By-Products Go Up in Smoke.
Further, it is estimated that there is a wastage of 25 per cent through inefficient methods in the average Chilean operation. There is a possibility of a gross reduction in price of 55 per cent in Chilean nitrate, therefore.

Bearing in mind this abundant source of cheap nitrogen and the ever-increasing output of the by-product coke industry in America, authorities concur in the belief that the future of the air fixation industry, as a peace-time commercial proposition, is indeed doubtful.

The super-power plans of Secretary Hoover and other conservationists, of which I shall speak in another article, bid fair to revolutionize the coal industry in America and write in a supply of by-product nitrogen that not only will supply America but the entire world.

It is estimated that $1,000,000,000 worth of coal by-products goes up in smoke in America each year—nitrogen included—and industrial science has found a way to stop it.

Even with our present output of by-product nitrogen, we find so plentiful that we export it to China and the West Indies for fertilizer. If it be true, as the excited Ford adherents aver, that our farm lands are starving for fertilizer, the fact that we can send it abroad the world more profitably than we can sell it at home would seem to be a curious economic joke.

NO SHOOTING.

HOW often the man on the news trail uncovers some surprising quirk in human nature, which turns his whole efforts at a right angle and brings unlooked-for results. No wonder he learns the trick of probing unsuspecting subjects for their Achilles' heel of susceptibility!

This story in point.

A printer on our paper in New York came back from a Sunday fishing trip to a little hamlet buried in the Catskills, and told the city editor a rich bit of gossip he'd picked up. All the village was talking of the surprising philosophy governing the married state which a certain wealthy man who lived there both preached and practiced. It was a "good story," in newspaper parlance. I was sent to interview the gentleman with the unbecomable ideas.

I got off the train at my destination in the midst of a lashing rainstorm, made inquiry of the station agent and learned my man lived three miles from town; no way to get there except hire one of the station hacks. This I did, and in the growing dark of night we set out over mirey roads.

The hackman was a rare character. As we sloshed through the rain he probed me as to my mission.

"Be you one of them city reporter fellahs? Heh, an' you're goin' up to ask this here crazy man how he gets that way?"

"Heh! Well if you be, I'm sorry for you, young fellah!"

He proceeded, then, to tell me just why he was sorry. This man I was going to interview kept two Great Danes on the place and had signs posted at the gate warning all strangers away. The dogs had tackled a trespasser only last week and nigh tore him apart.

"Mighty lonesome place where this crazy man lives, too, away up there on the mounting with no house anywhere's round. Fine place for a murder!"

From this and that the garrulous hackman let drop, I gathered that the matter I was going to ask this odd gentleman about was indeed a matter of record. If I put to him the questions my news sense demanded should be put, he would have ample provocation for testing, whether or not his home was a fine place for a murder.

The rain drove down in solid sheets. Ever and again the whole heavens burned a sulphurous blue of lightning flashes. I began to feel mighty sorry for myself.

We stopped before great stone pillars and the hackman sloshed out in the rain to open a gate. Hardly had he seated himself behind the reins, when two enormous shapes dashed out of the dark, leaping at the hack's closed curtains with insistent bellowings. These were the hospitable Great Danes.

We drove up a winding road to where a battery of lights marked the house on the crest of a hill. As we came to a halt under a porte-cochere the hackman spoke feelingly:

"I'll set right here where I can look through that there glass door. An' if this fellah makes a pass to shoot you or anythin', I'll likely come in an' see if I can help you out some."

With this cheering assurance I mounted steps and rang the bell. I was admitted by the man I had come to interview.

I was in that house an hour. When I took my departure, the gentleman of the house and his wife escorted me thence, he holding a lamp to light me to the hack. A cheery "Good night!" was my parting hail.

It was hard to explain to the flabbergasted hackman that this man he expected to shoot me was, after all, avid of publicity above all his wealth, and so had welcomed me with open arms.

Add this $1,642,500 to the large special gifts that were pledged before this campaign began and the $3,000,000 is raised.

Thousands of people have subscribed to the "Y" Fund...and with such good spirit. It isn't easy to tell them that their pledges aren't large enough.

St. Louis cannot jump from 42nd to 6th place among American cities in "Y" equipment unless each citizen realizes that this is an extraordinary emergency. You'll have to sell yourself. Think it over! If your pledge is already in, revise it. If you haven't been solicited—bear those 7 years in mind and what 30c a day can do.

Be sincere with yourself and your city!

SENATE IN DEBATE OVER COOLIDGE CAMPAIGN FUND

Walsh of Massachusetts Raises Issue by Presenting Letters From Mayor Curley of Boston.

LODGE DEFENDS
CHAIRMAN BUTLER

Heflin Says Republicans Are Trying to Raise Enormous Fund to Buy the Election.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
52-53 Wyatt Bldg.
WASHINGTON, May 22.—A flurry of oratory greeted presentation to the Senate of the letters and charges of Mayor Curley of Boston, alleging that a gigantic money-raising plot is in progress in Massachusetts for the benefit of President Coolidge and that evasion of the law is being openly solicited.

Senator Lodge became the center of the Senate's verbal barrage yesterday because of the mildness with which he regarded the Mayor's evidence, and his refusal to "see any implications of wrongdoing."

Senator Walsh (Dem.) of Massachusetts started the debate by having the Curley correspondence, which was addressed to him, referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections, with a demand for prompt passage of a corrupt practices act, which would be applicable to the election of Senators.

The resolution also asked for a report on the advisability of similar State legislation.
"I do not vote for the statements made by the Mayor," said Walsh, "but his letter discloses attempts to organize all the business interests of Massachusetts—the boot and shoe manufacturers in this instance—in raising campaign funds, and the suggestion made for flooding up contributions exceeding $1000 so that they will come within the limits of the law in the very teeth of the law, if it is not an actual violation."

Lodge wants laws strengthened.
"I should like to see the laws of the United States formulated and put in proper form," Senator Lodge agreed, "and I think it ought to be done now. The stronger they are the better I'll like it. But this letter is a violent attack on Charles Butler of Brookline, Mass., from the Walworth Manufacturing Co., of Washington."

Lodge read the paragraph in the circular letter assuring prospective contributors to the "Calvin Coolidge Finance Committee" that there is no limit to the amount an individual may give to this committee. Large contributions will be so divided as to give full observance to the requirements of the statutes.

Lodge explained that the work complained of was being done by a voluntary committee which was organizing the collection from every trade line. Lodge stated that the purpose of raising the fund was to help pay the expense of holding the national convention, to maintain Coolidge headquarters, to bear a part of the expenses of the Republican National Committee, and to maintain the Massachusetts committee in carrying on an active campaign for the election of Coolidge.
He eulogized Butler, declaring he was taking no more interest in politics than all men should. He declared that Butler was "a man of the highest character and perfectly incapable of doing anything dishonest."

Senator Walsh (Dem.) of Montana said that the letters which Mayor Curley had complained of were being sent by some central authority, and wanted to know what that authority was.

"A volunteer committee," replied Lodge.

"It would not act without a head," interrupted Senator Robinson (Dem.) of Arkansas. "Who is the head?"

"Deliberate Purpose to Evade," said Robinson, "indicates a deliberate purpose to evade of the laws of Massachusetts. The Senator from Massachusetts, Mr. Lodge, expressed the opinion mildly, hesitatingly and vaguely, that there is no purpose to break the law."

"I think the significant thing," interrupted Walsh of Massachusetts, "is that every industry is being circularized."

"What's the use of talking about it in this way?" protested Lodge.
"There is not a man in the Senate who doesn't know how money is raised for campaign purposes. Yet you talk here as if we don't know money was raised in every state.
Nine-tenths of the money spent for your party (addressing Senator Robinson), as well as for mine, is raised in the city of New York."

"The Republican party is trying to do now," Senator Heflin (Dem.) of Alabama, burst forth, "just what it did in 1920. Money! Money!"

POLITICS AND INEFFICIENCY HAMPER WORK OF JUSTICE DEPARTMENT, CRIM SAYS

Veterans' Bureau Fraud Prosecutor Tells Senators of Reform Needed and Expresses Faith in Daugherty.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—An account of the difficulties faced by Harry M. Daugherty as Attorney-General and a plain-spoken affirmation of faith in his honesty and loyalty were given the Senate Daugherty Committee today by John W. H. Crim, who served with him throughout the troubled days of his tenure as head of the Department of Justice. In his long and close association with the former Attorney-General, Crim said he never found ground to suspect him of corruption.

"It will take a lot of evidence," he told the committee, "before I will believe that Harry M. Daugherty ever took a cent of crooked money through Jesse Smith."

He said he believed that Crim had his faults, but he believed he was a man of integrity. "I will believe he prostituted his office," he said, "to me he never faltered."

In the present organization and management of the Justice Department, however, Crim said he had found much to criticize in the time he had acted as Assistant Attorney-General. The large list of men and women now holding the title of assistant, he said, should be cut out two, and they should be held responsible for results. He declared the force of secret agents also should be reduced by nine-tenths and the District Attorneys' offices throughout the country taken out of politics and placed on an efficient basis.

The reason he finally resigned his high post in the department, he told the committee, was because "the Department of Justice was not functioning as well as it might."

Politics and inefficiency, he said, were encountered at many points in the vast legal framework over which Daugherty presided. He used the war frauds cases as an example.

"I told the Attorney-General one day: 'You're going to lose every one of those cases because you haven't got the men that can handle them,'" he said. "He told me to go get a couple of lawyers who could handle them."

But the search developed that outstanding, competent lawyers had business before the Government, the witness said, disqualifying them for taking the Government's side of the cases. "You'll find that the trouble every time," he continued.

There were also "some black sheep District Attorneys," he said, whose discharge he had recommended.

"Did you find the Attorney-General irresponsible to your appeals?" asked Senator Jones (Rep.) of Washington. "Oh, he was all right," Crim said. "I never acted on anything with his consent and approval that if it wasn't generously given. The other side would get in there and he'd listen to them and send me a note to push it along."

"Now, you resigned. Why?" Chairman Brookhart (Rep.) of Iowa asked. "I thought the Department of Justice was not functioning as well as it might."

Money! They are making an effort to buy the election. There isn't any doubt of that. They are starting this early to raise an enormous fund to purchase the election wherever it can be done."

Senator Spencer (Rep.) of Missouri, chairman of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, said that there should be speedy legislation on the subject.

Over $500,000 was raised in Massachusetts for the election of President Harding, Walsh of that State said he had been advised, and he added that it was predicted that at least twice that sum would be raised for the election of President Coolidge. Should the Massachusetts efforts spread, Walsh predicted that $20,000,000 or $30,000,000 would be raised for the Republican campaign fund throughout the country.

tioning as well as it might."

Objected to Detective Service.
He explained he had objected most to the department's "detective service" when "every other department and bureau of the Government had its own detective service."

"The Attorney-General didn't disagree with me so much," Crim said, "but he considered the time had not come, with Congress seeking to provide for all these detectives. Each department of the Government should police its own territory. That's the secret of the efficiency of the Postoffice Inspectors and the Treasury secret service—small bodies of men with a fellow in charge who can watch them all the time. Radical changes only come slowly. There is a great deal of legislation necessary."

Neglect of Work.
In a general discussion of the organization of the Department of Justice, in which he was a supervising official before he took over the special detail of prosecuting the Veterans' Bureau frauds, Crim declared there was "too much work being done in Washington by the Department, due to the neglect of the offices of the United States District Attorneys out in the country."

"For instance, if there was a proper organization," he said, "they wouldn't need me at Chicago as a special attorney." With a District Attorney and 17 assistants at Chicago, he explained, "I found that in the fiscal year 1932 they tried 22 jury cases."

"Utter Demoralization," asked Chairman Brookhart, Iowa. "That meant utter demoralization," Crim returned.

Couldn't Locate "Red Army." Brookhart asked about the department's interest in "Red" propaganda.

"Oh, back in 1931 there were some of these fellows interested in 'reds' who talked to me for a week or 10 days," Crim said. "It would come up again every once in a while, but in all the 'red' agitation they never brought me evidence."

"Who is they?" asked Paul Howland, counsel for former Attorney-General Daugherty.

Societies, Institutions. "Crim replied, 'who would bring me a report of some wild talk of individuals whom they wanted arrested.'"

"Know about the Wall street bomb case?" asked the chairman.
"I don't know anything about the case of that," Crim replied.

Brookhart asked if the explosion "was not an accident," and continued: "Weren't there detectives interested in getting an explanation, to scare the banks and corporations into giving them a job?"

"I suspect there is something to what you say, as a general proposition," returned the witness. "I don't know as to the specific case.
Anyway, I was never able to locate this 'red' army, led by Senator Borah and ex-Senator France, that was supposed to be marching on to Washington. So far as I know the Department of Justice never did anything about it."

Passed Smith Going in and Out.
"Did you know Jesse Smith?" Brookhart inquired. "I met him in the fall of 1931," Crim said, "and passed him going in and out of the department. He came to me once about a nephew of his, a law student in the department."

"What did you understand Smith's relations to be?" asked Senator Jones (Rep.) of Washington. "My curiosity was aroused," said Crim. "I think I'd better say he stopped me on the street and asked abruptly: 'John, do you know Warren well?'"

"Now I was under instruction. I made inquiries and was told that Smith was one of the fellows from Washington Court house who had associated a great deal with the Attorney-General, but he made no great impression on me until I read the newspapers."

MISSOURI LABORS FOR COMPENSATION LAW

Salient Points Agreed Upon: Repeal of State Income Tax Demanded.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MOBERLY, Mo., May 22.—The convention of the Missouri State Federation of Labor yesterday adopted a resolution assailing Gov.
Hyde for his attitude during the suspension of work of miners during the strike of the Federated Shoppers. The resolution said:

"Gov. Hyde ordered out the National Guard and sent them where no trouble existed. This action was taken after he had promised R. T.
Wood, president of the State Federation of Labor, that he would confer with him before he would send any troops. He failed to keep his promise with President Wood and he lent assistance to the railroads to establish the open shop.
He vetoed the miners' bath house bill, which showed his unfriendly feeling."

R. T. Wood of Springfield yesterday was re-elected president of the federation. Other officers elected were: W. J. Adams, Kansas City, first vice president; Marie Summers, St. Louis, second vice president; Arthur Schading, St. Louis, third vice president; Maurice Ryan, St. Joseph, fourth vice president; Herman Winters, Kansas City, fifth vice president; George R. Patterson, St. Joseph, secretary-treasurer.

Robert Armstrong, St. Louis, delegate to 1935 American Federation of Labor convention; Lonnie Jones of Huntsville and Gus Maxey of St. Louis, members of the Legislative Committee.

Jefferson City was selected as the 1936 convention city. The holding of conventions every two years, rather than annually, was voted.

Resolutions adopted demanded repeal of the state income tax law.
Should the Legislature fail to act upon the income tax law, the labor forces will invoke the initiative to repeal it.

Workmen's Compensation.
A proposed workmen's compensation law was agreed upon with the following salient points: Exclusive state insurance; percentage of wages 66 2-3 per cent at the time of injury in cases, waiting period, two days, except for medical aid, no compensation for the first two days unless the injury lasts longer than seven days; medical aid, $500 and 90 days, in exceptional cases the commission to extend both of said limits as reasonably necessary.

The injured employee to have the right to choose his own physician and hospital.

Temporary total disability not more than 400 weeks; Temporary partial disability not more than 400 weeks; permanent total disability to be two-thirds of the wages for life; permanent partial disability—in addition to all other compensation, the injured employee to receive 66 2-3 per cent of his wages for the loss of a major arm at the shoulder, 300 weeks; and that the schedule for all other permanent partial disability injuries be based on this figure.

Burial benefit to be $250; death benefit to be 66 2-3 per cent of the wages for six years with a $30 maximum.

Lump Sum Settlement.
The commission to make a lump sum settlement where desired, at one-third less than the total

Woman Who Plans to Clear Herself
Of Suspicion in Elwell Murder

MISS VIOLA KRAUSS.

amount of weekly payments of six years.

Minimum for permanent total disability $12, for permanent partial and death, $10; all other cases, $8; maximum in all cases of $30 per week.

The wage rule to be two-thirds of the daily wages at the time of the injury.

RECEIVER FOR DROVERS' BANK

R. R. Karraker to Take Charge of East St. Louis Institution.

Ray R. Karraker, cashier of the St. Louis National Bank, Market and Twentieth streets, has been appointed receiver for the Drovers' National Bank of East St. Louis, which was closed May 15 by order of the Board of Directors.

Karraker, who was notified today by the Comptroller of the Currency at Washington of his appointment, said he would take charge tomorrow. He said he knew nothing of the affairs of the bank, and would confer with the national bank examiners now at work on the books before he decided whether to establish an office in the bank building.

Giminez Cleared of Girl's Death.
By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Manuel Giminez, son of the Cuban Consul-General at Malaga, Spain, who has been held by the police pending investigation of the death, last week, of Renee Harris of Cadiz, O., was released today in Homicide court.

This action followed a motion by Assistant District Attorney Hennis, who said an autopsy showed the girl had died of pneumonia.

Giminez was arrested following the young woman's collapse in his apartment. The body of Miss Harris was buried today in Kensico cemetery.

Resinol is today the first remedy applied in any sort of skin affection.

Soothes
disinfects heals

Not merely on the surface but underneath, where permanent relief is found

Do not expect ordinary surface remedies to remove a rash, eczema or itching skin disorder. Not on the outside, but deep down in the under layers of the skin is the real source of the trouble.

Pores clogged with poisonous germs, body cells and tissues swollen and inflamed—these are what must be soothed back to normal before a rash, eczema, or other skin disorder will disappear.

Yet there is a way that brings almost immediate relief—a way that goes to the real source of the trouble. To cleanse the pores, kill germs, and start the skin again acting normally, physicians have for twenty-eight years been prescribing Resinol in their daily practice.

If you have today any spot, rash or irritation on your skin, apply Resinol.
Get a jar of this soothing, healing ointment; spread a coating on the affected surface and smooth it in very gently with the fingers. One application will, in many cases, stop the itching completely. Resinol is absolutely harmless. It will not irritate the delicate texture of an infant's skin, or even raw exposed flesh. It does not deteriorate or lose its effectiveness with time. Get a jar at your druggist's today or send for a free trial sample to Dept. 30, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

Widely prescribed in care of infants

That constant succession of rashes, roughness, chafing and irritation on baby's skin that can be so annoying to the mother and so distressing to the child—can be easily and safely remedied by the use of Resinol Ointment. It is a safe and effective remedy for constant use.
Pure, healing, mild, and non-irritating. It can be used without fear. Its results are surprising.

PROPOSES TO REOPEN
ELWELL MURDER CASE

Attorney Says Effort Will Be Made to Clear Miss Krauss of All Suspicion.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Bernard H. Sandler, attorney, who accompanied Mrs. Walter Lewisohn to the French liner pier yesterday, where she sailed on the France for Paris, said today he would shortly attempt to have the Joseph Horne Elwell murder case reopened in an effort to definitely clear Miss Viola Krauss, Mrs. Lewisohn's sister, of any suspicion in connection with the mysterious killing of Elwell in his home the morning of June 11, 1935.

Miss Krauss was disclosed by former District Attorney Swann several weeks after the murder as the mysterious "Miss Wilson," otherwise known as "the pink lady," who figured so prominently in the early investigations. She was questioned several times by Swann, but no charge was ever made against her, and she was not placed in custody.

Miss Krauss, her sister and the latter's husband, Walter Lewisohn, who recently was adjudged insane and who has been in a private sanitarium in Greenwich, Conn., for several months, were with Elwell at the Ritz Roof Garden a few hours before his body, with a bullet hole through his head, was found in a chair on the floor of his home.

A newspaper interview abroad with a former housekeeper of Elwell quoted the housekeeper as saying she had heard the mysterious "Miss Wilson" threaten to kill Elwell if he deserted her again. When questioned by Swann, Miss Krauss, according to Swann, denied ever making any threat against Elwell, whom she said she had known for about eight years.

Mrs. Lewisohn sailed yesterday under the name of Maria Selma, the name she uses on the operatic stage.

Marvelous Liquid Gives Hair 7-Day Wave—
In 15 Minutes

Why pay $25 or more for a permanent wave which lasts only a few months? Or $100 or more a week to have your hair curled or waved? This expense is no longer necessary. For now, in your own home, you can give your hair what we consider a far more beautiful permanent wave effect—and you can do it in just 15 minutes—and at a cost of just a few cents a week.

This is through a wonderful liquid called Domino Curlette. You simply rub this marvelous liquid, use your favorite curlers, and in just 15 minutes you have a wealth of soft, lustrous curls, and waves which stay in place from 7 to 10 days, often longer.

Just think what this means! No more straight, dull, unattractive hair. No more big fees to hair dressers! No more fuss and bother of curling your own hair several times a week! For just one application of Domino each week will keep your hair permanently wavy and curly. Just as dainty and charming as can be. Domino Curlette is now used by over one million women. Money back if not delighted. Sold by all good stores, such as Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co., Enderle Bros., Ritz, Bar & Fuller, H. Nugent & Bros., D. G. Co., Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney.

BUILDING CRAFTS PLAN NEW COUNCIL

Organization of Unions Into Body to Take Place of Old Failing Board Is Under Way.

Organization of the more important of the building crafts here into a council, to take the place of the failing Building Trades Council, has been under way for two weeks.

The Building Trades Council was suspended by the Building Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor last year because of its failure to unseat delegates from the Iron Workers' Union here, at that time under suspension by the Iron Workers' International Union. Following the suspension of the Council the more important unions dropped out, until at present only the Building Laborers and several of the lesser crafts remain. A group of International Union officials met here in March to reorganize the Council, but left town after one meeting which they allege was interrupted by "unauthorized persons attempting to gain recognition."

Temporary officers of the new organization expressed the belief today that the International Unions will accept the organization and authorize the application for a charter. When this takes place it is practically certain that the few crafts still in the old Council will apply for representation in the new body. Officers of the old Council are said to have expressed a willingness "to step down" in the interest of harmony in the building crafts.

Representation of the Plumbers' Union in the new group is of special significance, because the plumbers long refused to be associated with the old body. This leads labor observers to the opinion that the new body will be the strongest union of the building crafts ever formed in St. Louis.

Organization of employers into the Better Building Interests of St. Louis several months ago undoubtedly hastened the forming of a new Council of the crafts, as the Better Building Interests assumed full authority in settling recent wage disputes. The trades represented in the new Council are carpenters, bricklayers, plumbers, painters, cement workers, iron works, plasterers and several affiliated crafts.

The Art Glass Workers' Local Union No. 562 returned to work yesterday at a 2½-cent hourly increase, following a nine-week strike. The art glass workers struck when their demand for an increase from $7½ cents an hour to $1 an hour was rejected by employers. Yesterday the 180 men in the union returned to work at a 90-cent hourly scale. The art glass workers are affiliated with the Painters' District Council.

400 VOTES FOR SMITH AT START, MANAGERS SAY

Re-election of Guffey in Pennsylvania Enthusiasm Headquarters of New York Governor.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, May 22.—Making no claims for publication, but privately estimating the number of delegates their candidates will have during the early stages of the Democratic national convention, managers for Gov. Alfred E. Smith today figured he would start with at least 400 votes. They will not be surprised if the Governor's count of delegates at the outset tops 425.

Two items published in yesterday's newspapers greatly heartened Franklin D. Roosevelt, director of the Smith campaign, and other enthusiastic Smith workers at the Governor's headquarters. One recorded the re-election of Joseph P. Guffey, as Democratic National Committeeman from Pennsylvania. The other, a dispatch from Montpelier, Vt., announced the Vermont delegation would go "uninstructed." Guffey is the Smith leader in the Keystone State. He has been in the forefront of the Smith presidential army for nearly a year. The New York Governor's supporters said that continuance of Guffey in the Pennsylvania leadership means that Smith will receive not less than 45 of the Pennsylvania votes and in the long run is bound to get virtually all that delegation.

YOUTH SHOT WHEN HE FLEES FROM GRANITE CITY POLICE

Officers Were Questioning Him Regarding Ownership of an Automobile.

A youth who said he was Walter Edwards, 18 years old, of Okawville, Ill., was shot in the back by a Granite City patrolman at 2:45 a. m. today and seriously wounded when he attempted to run from police night riders. The policeman was questioning him concerning the ownership of an automobile in which he was found at Twentieth street and Madison avenue, Granite City. The bullet pierced the lung.

Edwards told the officers the car belonged to him and that he was in Granite City seeking employment. One of the officers started for a patrol box to ascertain to whom the license had been issued. Edwards jumped from the car and ran. Patrolmen Jels and Davis each fired one shot. The bullet found under a seat in the automobile. Police asserted the youth later confessed having stolen the car. The license had been issued to F. L. Holman of Odell, Ill.

Warns Middle-Aged Women to Check High Blood Pressure

Thousands of women at times are in danger of high blood pressure. It is caused by poisonous waste accumulating in the system or the weakening of one or more organs. This forces the heart to do more work and raises blood pressure.

The symptoms are dizziness, shortness of breath, head pains, flushed face, nervousness or sleeplessness. High blood pressure must be treated and stopped for everyone knows it brings on Bright's disease, apoplexy and often sudden death. It is too dangerous and quick acting to go without heeding its symptoms.

Norma is a doctor's prescription for high blood pressure. It has been used with great success, and is now sold by Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, Enderle and Johnson Bros. Drug Stores, and good druggists everywhere.

Being a purely vegetable medicine it contains no habit-forming drugs, is harmless, and works in such a way that it drives out waste matter, lessens the duty of the overtaxed heart and reduces blood pressure swiftly and safely. Often one bottle brings great relief. Get a bottle of Norma today and free yourself of life-shortening high blood pressure.

"FIERY CROSS" HALTS TRAIN

A "fiery cross," burning close to the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad tracks at St. Charles, last night, caused the engineer of a fast passenger train to reduce speed in the belief that the cross was a danger signal.

After learning that the cross did not forecast danger to the train, the engineer continued on into St. Charles station. The cross was placed on the river bank, along which the M.-K.-T. tracks run, and it was about six feet high and lighted. It was believed to have been erected by klansmen, although no klans demonstration was conducted under it.

Urges Editors to Aid Enforcement.
By the Associated Press.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., May 22. Alleging newspapers are "partly to blame for the wholesale lack of respect for laws," Wallace Odell, editor of the Tarrytown (N. Y.) Daily News, and president of the National Editorial Association, speaking at the association's convention here today, urged newspaper editors to do all in their power "to command respect for all laws, to refuse to publish scolded wet jokes, to stand steadfastly together for the preservation of the American home and support the constitution of the best country on earth."

MAN WITH TWO WIVES ASKS TO BE ARRESTED

Andrew W. Madeker Walks Into Police Station and Surrenders—Case Is Adjusted.

The Desk Sergeant at Souard Street Police Station was entering routine reports at 5:15 p. m. yesterday when Andrew W. Madeker, 22 years old, a bottle and former soldier, walked up to the counter and announced in even and well-modulated tones: "I've got two wives and want to be looked up."

He was accommodated. The wives visited the police station together this morning, informing the Captain that a family agreement had been reached whereby "Andy" would not be prosecuted if he returns to wife No. 1. Wife No. 2 will seek annulment. Andy said he "guessed that is the only way out of the trouble." He is willing to go back to No. 1.

First Marriage in 1922.
The story, as told to a Post-Dispatch reporter by Andy and corroborated by the wives, begins with a party on Feb. 7, 1922. It was there that Andy, single and living with his parents at 2249 Shenandoah avenue, met Miss Marie Stroebel, 22, of 1411 South Broadway. He took her home that night. Mutual attraction was so great they were married the next day. But they didn't get along. Andy didn't like the way she kept house. They separated and then became reconciled on several occasions.

During a period of separation, about four months ago, Andy went to a South Side motion picture show alone. There had been a little snow that evening and it was slip on the sidewalk in front of the theater. As Andy left a young woman just ahead of him slipped. He caught her and during the exchange of thanks and acceptances got her telephone number. They started going together. She was Mrs. Rose Lattier, 25, of 2604 Russell boulevard, who had divorced her first husband and who has three children. She told Andy all that. He let her think he was unmarried.

Marries Again Tuesday.
Andy proposed marriage to Rose a month ago but it was not until Tuesday that they got a license at the city hall and were married by a nearby Justice of the Peace. Marie's mother saw the published license and called up Andy's mother. The families were arranging a conference to talk the thing over while Andy was debating the situation in his own mind. "I at first thought I could get away with it," Andy said. "But I finally decided that it couldn't be done and I came in and gave myself up so they would try me and get it over with." The wives were informed of his surrender by police last night and the agreement that he return to No. 1 was reached during the night.

COLLEGE REPUBLICAN CLUBS
ENDORSED BY COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, May 22.—In endorsing the Republican National Committee's action in forming College Republican Clubs, President Coolidge, in a statement issued last night through the committee, said there was satisfaction "in the knowledge that so many young men and women now in college are taking interest in the problems which confront the nation."

"Indifference toward national affairs," the President said, "is indifference towards the welfare of the country, in the Government of which they all will have a part. Those who are enjoying the advantage of a college training should fully appreciate that the duties of citizenship are not to be entered upon lightly. Good citizenship requires the same careful study and intelligent application as any business or profession."

"There could be no more fitting preparation for this important function than participation in the activities which the College Republican Clubs afford. The young men and women who take part in the discussion and debate provided by these student organizations should assume the obligations of citizenship with a deeper sense of responsibility, a clearer insight into policies and principles, and a more ardent desire to exercise their right of suffrage for the national good."

The Makers of Boott Toweling urge women to wash their Boott Towels with Rinso

"The washings done with Rinso were a revelation.

"The work of washing was cut almost in half, there was scarcely any rubbing and the towels came out as white as though new off the bolt.

"We gave them a good trial, too. We took very soiled towels and gave them many washings. The strength of our fine quality cotton yarn was not lessened in any way by these washings, and the finish of the towels was just as beautiful as it was before laundering. We are only too glad to tell women to use Rinso when they wash Boott towels."

Fresh clean towels without hard rubbing

Dissolve Rinso in boiling water. It swishes up into a wonderful soap solution—a rich soapy suds.

Pour this into your tub and let your towels soak in these cleansing suds. This soaking takes the place of rubbing. Then the loosened dirt flushes right off in the rinsing.

If your towels are very grimy from the children's hands or from hands that have cleaned the car, after soaking you will want to sprinkle a little dry Rinso on the worst places and rub them lightly between your hands. Then even this dirt will come out with only a light rubbing.

Use the wonderful Rinso soapsuds in your tubs, boiler, or washing machine in the ordinary way. Always use enough Rinso to get big lasting suds after the clothes are put in. You'll find it ideal for all the family wash. It has more cleansing power than ordinary soaps—it saves your clothes from harmful rubbing and saves your own strength.

Because Rinso is all dissolved it rinses out thoroughly leaving no bits of soap sticking to garments to turn them yellow under the iron.

Even the dirt they actually rub into the towels is gently loosened in the rich Rinso soapsuds Robbers in Subways and on "L's" in the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Two subway stations and two elevated stations in widely scattered parts of the city were held up almost simultaneously early today, the robbers getting $1875, according to the police. The ticket agents were the sole victims. Patrolmen were stationed at all stations immediately to prevent repetition of the robbery.

SEMINARY WARNED AGAINST HERESY

Southern Presbyterians Threaten to Withdraw Support if Teachings Are Unorthodox.

By the Associated Press.
SAN ANTONIO, Tex., May 22.—The general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States (Southern) has taken a stand against evolution, against alleged unorthodox teachings in a seminary at Nanking, China, and in favor of remaining a member of the alliance of Presbyterian and Reformed Church of the World.

The assembly yesterday declared its belief in a special creation whereby "Adam's body was fashioned out of matter previously created from nothing" and stated that any doctrine at variance with this was dangerous. It voted to continue its support for the Nanking seminary, but warned that "unless the instructions in the seminary be kept in harmony with the historic Evangelical interpretation of the Bible" support would be withdrawn.

Charges of unorthodox Biblical criticism in the seminary had been made by missionaries of the North China mission. The special committee's report on this declared:

"We have been led to believe that there has been teaching in the seminary that is not in harmony with our conceptions of essential truth and in particular with our doctrine of the Holy Scriptures as the word of God. We receive the impression, however, that the instruction given at the present time is less open to objection."

The seminary is supported jointly by both the Northern and Southern Presbyterian churches, the Methodist churches, North and South, and by the Christian church.

In recommending continued support for the alliance of Presbyterian and reformed churches, the committee touched upon conditions of Protestantism in Europe where the alliance has been attempting to aid. Much material assistance in the way of food and clothing has been given the suffering peoples, they said.

"It is further reported," said the report, "that in Czechoslovakia the movement from Romanism to Protestantism continues. The latter church in that country now numbers about 1,000,000 souls. The Bohemian church numbers 125 churches and 210,000 souls."

The stewardship committee, in a report submitted today said: "Our social, business and religious contacts have become so multiplex and so inter-related that insensibly today men are interpreting their duty by the standards of the group they belong to. Business men live in an atmosphere of group contacts, group insurance, group program. Unconsciously this affects the thinking of men as they measure duty."

"Manifest evidence could be submitted to prove that the church is getting rich. Judged by the experience of history, this results in ease, indifference and decadence. And so today, true to history, we have as perhaps the greatest single obstacle to the progress of the church a condition within the church, namely, indifference. This is an inevitable sequence of modern conditions."

"With the effect that increased wealth has on the average individual the church faces in the future one of its hardest fights. Has the gospel of Christ, the vitality and power to take captive the money-making talents within the church? Has the church a measure for the condition that has come within the past 50 years? For the same reason that the church faces a hard fight in the future, it also faces one of its greatest victories if the average man and woman in the church can be brought into close partnership with God in this day of accumulating wealth. The church may then look with equanimity upon the growing wealth within it. If that wealth is accumulated and administered with a sense of personal responsibility to God."

By the Associated Press.
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 22.—Dr. Charles F. Wishart, retiring moderator, opened the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America (Northern) today with a denunciation of warfare and a demand that the church take a determined stand toward abolishing it.

"Modern war is utterly anti-Christian," he said. "It is by necessity thoroughly organized, carefully stimulated and systematically propagated hate."

"The time may come, he continued, when a choice will have to be made between the use of force and extinction of 'our national existence.' People condemn war in the abstract, but 'in the full tide of national passion' they become 'flaming, fighting patriots.'"

Dr. Wishart expressed the opinion that most of the commissioners attending the assembly would aid in the defense of the country from invasion or attack from without. But he added, "if the church takes the position we must not shrink from its corollary." That corollary, he declared, is that the church must hereafter have something to say about "the reckless provoking of invasion by belligerent apostles of the Anglo spirit."

Senator Lodge's proposal for the establishment of a World Court, wholly divorced from the League of Nations, was characterized as an "impossible alternative" by Dr. Wishart.

"Shall a man who has nothing to offer to a war-torn and heart-sick world but an impossible alternative, have the power to vote my boy and yours to be cannon fodder?" Dr. Wishart asked. "If so, then in God's name, the time has come for the church to take a hand in this matter; the time has come for a stricter accounting from our public servants; the time has come when we must change the war mind and put in its place the peace mind."

Special Communication to Organizations in St. Louis

Every club, fraternal organization, union, lodge, church society and every other group is earnestly invited to make a contribution to the $3,000,000 Building Fund of the St. Louis Y. M. C. A. We have a PLAN that makes it possible for your organization to share in this very worthy movement and perpetuate that gift in a most practical manner.

There are to be 400 Dormitory Rooms in the new Downtown home of the Y. M. C. A. to care for young men who are away from home. We want to have these rooms provided by various societies on the basis of $1000.00 per room, and the DONOR WILL HAVE THE PRIVILEGE OF NAMING THE ROOM BY PLACING THE NAME ON A DOOR-PLATE.

The organization whose name appears on the door may regard the young man who occupies that room as its perpetual guest and pleasant occasions may be planned—flowers and a card on his birthday, an invitation out to Thanksgiving dinner, invitations to homes and social events, etc.—that will mean much to a young fellow away from home. No one can estimate the value of such subscription and service.

This feature is limited to the new Dormitory Rooms and open ONLY to organized groups. Selection of rooms for name plates will be made in the order that the pledges are filled. Remember, NO CASH is asked for—the pledges are payable in TEN INSTALLMENTS, six months apart, covering five years. On this basis most every club can take one or more rooms.

If your organization does not meet before May 23d, when the campaign closes, will YOU take responsibility to get action in some way so that your club will not be left out of this splendid effort. Report your name and pledge direct to the Campaign Headquarters by phone, Olive 2760—or hand it in to one of the campaign workers. Who will be among the first? Fill out and send in the enclosed subscription card. We will appreciate your prompt co-operation in behalf of the boys and young men.

Very respectfully yours for the Committee,

EIGHT-YEAR FIGHT OVER DYE PATENT SETTLED

Fouke Interests Pay Cash to English Concern—Injunction Against Use Abandoned.

A controversy of eight years' standing, three years of which have been spent in litigation, as to whether certain St. Louis fur companies appropriated an English furrier's patent seal-skin dye, was settled in the United States District Court yesterday.

On a stipulation indicating a large cash settlement out of court by the St. Louis defendants, Federal Judge Davis vacated all actions brought against them by the plaintiff, George Rice Co., Ltd., of London. The English firm apparently was satisfied, as it agreed through dismissal "with prejudice to the plaintiff" not to bring any more suits against the fur companies named over use of the dyeing process.

The defendants—Funsten Brothers Fur Co., the International Fur Exchange, the Gibbons & Lohm Dressing and Dyeing Co. and Philip B. Fouke, president of the Fouke Fur Co.—agreed to pay all court costs.

In return for the cash settlement indicated, the London company abandoned an injunction which forbade the St. Louis firms from using its dye process and also waived adjudication of its claims by a special master who had been appointed by Federal Judge Faris. The special master, Irvine Mitchell, is to receive $1200 from the defendants for the work already done.

Illegal Use of Patent Alleged.
The George Rice Co. had alleged, when its suit was filed in 1921, that illegal use of its dye process by the St. Louis fur companies had caused it a loss of $100,000. From the start of the controversy it rested between Fouke and the English dyers. Fouke controls the Funsten and Gibbons & Lohm companies, and the International Fur Exchange is now a name only.

Whatever its source, the seal-skin dyeing process used by Fouke and his associates has been a large factor in the development of St. Louis as a raw and finished fur market. Fouke holds a 10-year contract with the Government for exclusive dressing of all seals taken in the Pribilof Islands, Alaska, which is a national reservation. This contract, awarded by virtue of the peculiar dyeing process Fouke controls, has been under fire in Congress for three years. On Jan. 3 last Senator Wheeler of Montana introduced a resolution calling for Senate investigation of the contract.

English Company's Allegations.
As the English company described its case in the suit, Fouke visited London in 1916 and induced two of its trusted employees, John C. Lohm and William G. Gibbons, to journey to America with him, deserting their English employers. They took with them the secret formula for dyeing seal skins, which had been the sole property of George Rice, Limited, 40 years, the English plaintiff alleged. In St. Louis Fouke organized the Gibbons & Lohm Dressing and Dyeing Co. and started dyeing Government seal skins with the Rice patent as given him by the two former Rice employees, the suit alleged.

Fouke contended that his companies never used the Rice patent. He declared the process used by his firms was developed by Lohm and Gibbons and Sam Pingree Jr., one of his employees, and was entirely different from the Rice dye. In working on the formula the Fouke firms sent Pingree to Washington University for a short course in chemistry and after his schooling the dye was evolved, Fouke has asserted. Despite the injunction of Judge Faris, the Fouke companies never ceased their dyeing operations, contending that they were not using the Rice dye.

Fouke declined to say today how much had been paid the London firm as a settlement. He denied the Rice patent had been bought, or had been desired.

The Elgin Time Observatory takes the time from the stars and transmits it to the Elgin Laboratories and Timing Rooms

"Go to the Stars for the Exact Time" said the Astronomer

SO in 1911, Elgin built the Elgin Time Observatory. This Observatory takes the time direct from the stars, the only source of precise time, for it is from the movement of the earth in relation to the stars that man calculates time.

So true is the balance in the universe that the astronomer can, to within a fraction of a second, predict even such occasional phenomena as the appearance of a comet or an eclipse years before their appearance.

The Elgin Time Observatory is completely equipped with the most delicate instruments used in determining exact time.

It has a battery of four Riefler Clocks, the most accurate type of time-recording instruments in the world.

The astronomer in daily charge of the Elgin Observatory was selected by the Yerkes Observatory Eclipse Expedition to Catalina Island to record the official time of the eclipse of the sun last fall.

The Observatory is one of the stations of the United States Government Weather Bureau.

Elgin uses this Observatory every working day in the year; and transmits the precise time, hour after hour, throughout the Elgin work-shops and timing laboratories, thus facilitating the production of dependable watches.

The "Classic" Elgin—19 Jewel—thin model, in 14-Karat engraved cases of either Yellow, Green or White Gold—$150.

AND now, Elgin time is available also to every member of the Radio audience. It is broadcast daily for three minutes each time at 3:12 p. m., 5:57 p. m., and 10:57 p. m., Central Standard Time, from the Elgin Time Observatory through The Chicago Board of Trade Station, WDAF, at the Drake Hotel, Chicago.

Elgin seeks to put the precise time into the pocket or on the wrist of every owner of an Elgin Watch.

ADVERTISMENT PRINT THIS ABOUT Joint-Ease Says Druggist

"Joint-Ease is selling like hot cakes in my store because it is a wonderful and speedy remedy for all joint troubles."

"But, why not impress on tens of thousands of suffering people some of the things that doctors tell me almost daily."

"Some say that it knocks out lumbago over night—Others assert that for chest colds and sore throat it has no equal, while many insist that there is nothing they ever tried that is so efficient for neuralgia, neuritis and even head colds and nasal catarrh."

Answering the above letter, we, the makers of Joint-Ease, know that what this thriving New Jersey Druggist says is true, but we still maintain that Joint-Ease is prepared for stiff, inflamed, painful, swollen joints, whether in ankle, knee, hip, elbow, shoulder, finger or spine. You'll like to use stainless Joint-Ease, for with just one minute's rubbing it will take the pain direct to the inflamed bones and ligaments—that's why it succeeds. For when Joint-Ease gets in joint against sore out—quick—and without any waste of time all swelling and congestion disappears. A tube for 60 cents. BROWNS 1, WASHINGTON 0, AFTER 1-2 INNING; WINGARD ON MOUND

Young Lefthander Opposes Zachary In Series Final

By J. Roy Stockton, Of the Post-Dispatch Staff. WASHINGTON, May 22.—Ernest Wingard pitched for the Browns this afternoon in the final game of the series with Washington. His opponent was Southpaw Zachary, whose specialty last year was beating the Chicago White Sox.

Against the left-handed pitching, Frank Ellerbe played third base for the Browns. Despite bright skies and the first sunshine since Sunday, only 2500 spectators attended. The Browns depart for Philadelphia immediately after today's game, to open a three-game series with the Athletics.

The game: BROWNS.—Tobin walked, Ellerbe's grounder bounced over Harris' shoulder for a double, Tobin stopping at third, Tobin scored and Ellerbe moved to third on Sisler's sacrifice fly to Leibold. Williams sent a short fly to Goslin. McManus bunted and was thrown out by Ruel. ONE RUN.

SECRET TRAINING AT CARPENTIER CAMP WILL MEET WITH PROTESTS

Special to the Post-Dispatch. CHICAGO, May 22.—Francis Descamp's announcement that the final week of Georges Carpentier's training for Tom Gibbons will be a secret between the two men, Michigan waves and the Carpentier entourage, effective next Monday, has raised a critical clamor in some quarters. It is the same policy which guarded Carpentier's training before Dempsey knocked the former French aviator for a series of losses. Then it was properly and not unfavorably regarded as a reversion to type, for the public prints made much of it.

Now the situation is different, in that the articles of agreement provided for public training of both fighters, and the sport critics ask pertinently: Is secret training ordered because Carpentier is already in condition and will work too hard before the fans, as Descamp claims, or because his condition is not so good? In the former case, the critics have viewed at Carpentier's camp, has there been any real chance to determine whether his hands are in good shape?

MRS. GAUT DEFEATED BY MRS. LOWENDES IN SOUTHERN GOLF EVENT

By the Associated Press. CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 22.—Mrs. Dore Lowendes of Atlanta, former Southern woman's golf champion, today eliminated Mrs. David Gaut of Memphis, present title holder from the championship flight, for the thirteenth annual tournament, 2 up and 1 to 10. Mrs. Lowendes laid Mrs. Gaut four strokes, two of which deprived the champion of holes which she needed. She had clinched another of which forced a half.

Mrs. Lowendes meets Miss Priscilla Rogers of Houston, Tex., in the semifinals tomorrow. Miss Rogers defeated Mrs. J. N. Taylor of New Orleans, 7 up and 6 to play.

Brooklyn Only Club to Gain a Series From Rickymen
During Present Stand.

By Herman Wecke.
Early season favorites are having a tough time of it, especially in the National League. The struggle for the flag in the Heydler circuit is getting tighter every day, as the result of the second-division clubs over the pace-makers, and today but 4 1/2 games separate the first from the last.

And a total stranger is found at the top of the heap. While the Giants, Reds and Pirates were expected to make the pace, the Chicago Cubs today are showing the way. The Reds are a close second and the Giants are but a few points to the bad, but to date the Pirates have not been able to get going, and McKee's men are under the 500 mark.

There is the case of the Cardinals. Rickie's team, which, incidentally, has won seven of the 10 games played against Eastern rivals, is but 4 1/2 contests behind the pace-making Cubs.

In the National League today a winning streak by almost any club is apt to cause a great upheaval. That is certainly shown in the case of the Cardinals. Here is a club four games under the 500 mark for the season, and yet only 4 1/2 games removed from first place.

In winning the second straight from the Braves yesterday, 8 to 5, the Cardinals exhibited a real batting punch. Sterling Stryker, a right-hander, last season with Worcester in the Eastern League, who has been Bancroft's chief winner, was treated roughly. He labored seven frames, and in the last time he was pounded for 14 hits and six runs. Fred Lucas, another right-hander, who replaced him, was punished for two runs in the one frame he labored.

Meanwhile, Johnny Stuart was going along at an easy pace for the Rickymen. Stuart let up in the ninth, and, as a result of four hits, one a homer by Pinch Hitter, Cruse, the Braves put over four runs.

Stuart in Great Form.
Prior to the final round, Stuart had yielded but five hits. For 4-13 innings Stuart was a no-hit pitcher. Then, Tierney slapped a bouncer to the right of the pitcher. Stuart leaped for it, but it glanced off his glove for a single and the Braves first away. There is a chance that had Stuart let the ball alone, Tierney could have handled it in time to retire Tierney at first. Stuart struck out eight batters.

In batting, Stuart had quite a few assistants, although he himself drove Gonzales across with the first hit of the game in the fourth. In the next round, Ray Blades came through with a safety that sent in a pair, while in the sixth Max Plack came through with a safety that sent in a pair in the seventh, while Plack and Hornby were the batters who drove in runs in the ninth.

Field Day for Hornby.
Hornby had a perfect day at the plate. Rogers cracked out four hits, one a double, and drew a base on balls in as many appearances at the plate. As a result of his "big day," Hornby raised his batting average for the campaign to .444.

The last of the Eastern clubs calls today to open a series against the Cardinals. Art Fletcher will lead his tallenders against the Rickymen. In the first inter-divisional clash of the season to date, the Cardinals have won four straight from the Giants; dropped three of four to the Dodgers; and copped the only two tilts played with the Braves as a result of recent off days. Manager Rickie has several pitchers ready.

BOSTON, May 22.—Seven new national amateur boxing champions and an eighth who held the title in another class last year were acclaimed early today at the close of the national championship tourney here. From the entry list of more than 200 boxers from 24 States attracted by the hope of becoming members of the United States Olympic boxing team, the eight who emerged victorious were:

Heavyweight class—E. G. Greathouse, Washington, Pa.
175-pound class—Tom Kirby, Roxbury, last year's heavyweight titleist.
160-pound class—Ben Funk, Yale.
147-pound class—Al Mello, Lowell.
135-pound class—Fred Boylstein, Pittsburg.
126-pound class—Joe Salas, Los Angeles, Cal.
115-pound class—Jack Williams, New York.

One defending champion went down to defeat in the finals. John Rini, Cleveland, who won the 1923 world championship in the 123-pound class, lost the decision to Al Mello of Lowell, after he had battled his way through to the deciding third round contest. Kirby, the only other 1923 champion in competition, had easy victories in the earlier rounds but was extended in the finals to win the decision over Murray Gittitz, New Haven, Conn.

Three of the champions are from New England, two from California, two from Pennsylvania, and one from New York. A meeting of the Olympic selection committee was scheduled for today for the purpose of naming a team of 30 boxers to represent America in France, the selection to be based on the results of the tournament.

HUGHES ELIGIBLE FOR OLYMPIC SHOOT TEAM
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, May 22.—Frank Hughes of Moberg, S. D., trap-shooting star whose amateur status has been questioned since his selection as a member of the Olympic team, is eligible to represent the United States at the international games so far as the American Olympic committee is concerned.

This was revealed yesterday when Col. Robert M. Thompson, president of the committee, notified George F. McCarthy of Newfield, N. J., president of the Amateur Trapshooting Association, that Hughes had been cleared of charges against him as the result of a recent hearing in Washington before a board of Olympic officials.

Hughes, together with Frank Troeh of Vancouver, Wash., another Olympic selection, were charged with having their names used in connection with advertising for ammunition. Troeh has not requested a hearing and no action on his status has been taken so far by the American Olympic committee.

BOSTON, May 22.—Seven new national amateur boxing champions and an eighth who held the title in another class last year were acclaimed early today at the close of the national championship tourney here. From the entry list of more than 200 boxers from 24 States attracted by the hope of becoming members of the United States Olympic boxing team, the eight who emerged victorious were:

Heavyweight class—E. G. Greathouse, Washington, Pa.
160-pound class—Ben Funk, Yale.
147-pound class—Al Mello, Lowell.
135-pound class—Fred Boylstein, Pittsburg.
126-pound class—Joe Salas, Los Angeles, Cal.

Markets at a Glance

NEW YORK, May 22.—Conditions in various markets, briefly, follow: STOCKS—Moderate rise, but active trading was irregular. Call money advanced to 3 per cent. FOREIGN EXCHANGE—Unsettled, with sterling and franc fractionally lower. COMMODITIES—Old crop lower on bad weather reports; new crop steady. COFFEES—Lower, poor spot demand. WHEAT—Steady and unchanged. CATTLE—Dull, tending downward. HOGS—Lower, large receipts.

By Leased Wire From the New York

Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, May 22.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:
The better sentiment which was created by the conference committee agreement on the tax bill permitted today and resulted in a moderately higher price on the stock exchange. The market started firm and remained so until the close, although the best prices were obtained during the last hour. The market was moderately active as values approximating 72,000 shares. Short-covering appeared to furnish the main support for the market, but good trade in the buy-sell market was continued. Grains ran firm to about 1 point. Bonds advanced moderately active and firm, and call money remained at 3 per cent throughout.

Exchange Market Quiet.

Quietness also continued in the foreign exchange market with dealings in French francs falling off. France first advanced nine points to 164.50, then dropped back to 164.00. Such fluctuations pointed to a 5.48 percent rate. The market was expected after a period of disturbance and an elimination of the international balance between the two currencies have made their effect felt. The franc fell 7 1/2 points at a cent at 164.50, and was off 1/2 cent from the previous day's closing. The franc fell 7 1/2 points at a cent at 164.50, and was off 1/2 cent from the previous day's closing. The franc fell 7 1/2 points at a cent at 164.50, and was off 1/2 cent from the previous day's closing.

Foreign Bank Statements.

This week's Bank of England statement is notable for the non-occurrence of the changes reported. Circulation is only 122,000,000 and the ratio of reserves to circulation is 13 1/2 per cent. The statement is favorable, circulation is smaller than 1923, 1924, 1925, 1926, 1927, 1928, 1929, 1930, 1931, 1932, 1933, 1934, 1935, 1936, 1937, 1938, 1939, 1940, 1941, 1942, 1943, 1944, 1945, 1946, ROME CONFERENCE FIXES DEFINITION OF "EMIGRANT"

He Is Declared to Be One Who Goes Abroad to Get Work or Join Relatives.

By the Associated Press.
ROME, May 22.—The International Emigration Conference has agreed on a compromise definition of an emigrant, after a four-day debate on the subject, during which the emigration and immigration countries lined up in favor of opposing views.
The definition as finally accepted yesterday embodies the one submitted jointly by the French and Italian delegations, but it also includes an amendment presented by an Argentine delegate.
The Franco-Italian definition characterized an emigrant as a person who left a country to obtain work in another or to accompany or rejoin a relative, who had already emigrated for the stated purpose, returning emigrants were also covered.

An immigrant was defined as an emigrant who had taken up his first employment in the country of his adoption, in which he was to be treated on the same footing with other workers and was to be subject to the laws and regulations governing resident foreigners.
Legal Status of Immigrant.
The amendment included in the final definition stipulated that the immigrant should be subject to all laws affecting aliens in his adopted country from the moment of his arrival and that the term "immigrant" should be applied only to persons coming with the intention either expressed or implied of remaining permanently.

The chiefs of the various delegations were entertained at a luncheon yesterday by King Victor Emmanuel at the Quirinal Palace.
The work of most of the sections is beginning to take shape, and within the next day or two, it is expected a number of important resolutions will be adopted. All resolutions adopted by the sections must be passed upon at the plenary session of the conference.
Adequate Medical Service.
Section 1, of which Hugh S. Cumming, United States, is a member, has been working on regulations concerning the obligation of all steamship lines to maintain adequate medical staffs for free service for emigrants during voyages, and also has been framing resolutions for intensifying sanitary and hygiene instruction for emigrants before their departure.

Section Two, of which W. W. Hubbard, American Commissioner-General of Immigration, is a member, is working out an intricate system for providing legal aid for immigrants whose native country has no consular service in their particular localities so they can have recourse in the consular agents of any other country they may choose. No definite conclusions have been reached in this respect.

The work of Section Three, on which the United States is represented by Edward J. Henning, Assistant Secretary of Labor, does not concern the United States at present, since it is discussing measures regulating emigrant contract labor which is prohibited by American law.

Alberto N. Guani, Uruguay, who is attending the conference as an observer in his capacity as president of the Council of the League of Nations, delivered an address before the International Institute of Agriculture, in which he called attention to the fact that it was an American citizen, David Lubin of California, who originated the idea of founding the institute. He added that the League of Nations would lend all possible aid to the cause the institute was promoting.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

"WELL," he said slowly, "what do you gain? If you went on working, you'd find it difficult to keep house, you'd have to live in a boarding house. And that isn't homelike. And then, Miss Sturgis, there's the question of children. What would you do about them? You wouldn't care to have a child as long as you came downtown to an office every day. . . . No, I wouldn't advise it. If you love your young man well enough, I would urge you to marry him."

"I don't!" Jeannette said to herself violently on her way home. But did she? Almost with the denial, she began to wonder. That night when Roy came to see her and asked her again for the thousandth time to name the day, she took his face between her hands and kissed him tenderly, folded his head against her breast, and with arms tight about him, pressed her lips again and again to his unruly hair.

Later, when he had gone and she was alone, she dropped upon her knees before the old davenport where they had been sitting and wept.

It was the end of the struggle. She told no one for a long time, but in her mind she knew she would never marry him. Her work was too precious to her; her independence too dear; to give them up was demanding of her more than she had the strength to give.

The Chandler P. Corey Company was moving its offices. A twenty-year lease had been taken on a building especially designed to fit its needs in the East Thirties. The new home was a great cavernous concrete structure of eight spacious floors. On the ground floor were to be the new presses destined to print the magazines, and perhaps some of the books in the future; the next two floors were to house the bindery, the composing room and typesetting machines; the editorial rooms were to be located on the fourth floor, and above these would come in order the advertising, circulation and pattern departments, each with a stratum in the great concrete block to itself. The eighth floor was to be given over to surplus stock, and it would also serve as a store-room for paper and supplies.

Both Corey's Commentary and The Wheel of Fortune had made money for their owners during the past three years. It was the day of the "muck-raking" magazine, and Cavendish had unearthed a Wall Street scandal that sent the circulation of Corey's Commentary climbing by leaps and bounds. The Wheel of Fortune had been rechristened The Ladies' Fortune, and its contents were now devoted to women's interests and fashions. The pattern business, that had been launched in connection with it, had proven from the outset immensely successful. Horatio Stephens was now its editor, and Miss Reubens conducted the special departments appearing among the advertising in its back pages, always referred to in the office as "contaminated matter." The circulation of both periodicals had increased so rapidly that Mr. Featherstone had been obliged to announce an advance in their advertising rates every three months.

Other branches of the business, too, had grown and shown a profit. Francis Holme, who was head of the Book Sales Department, and now a member of the firm, had developed the manufacture and sale of book premiums and school books. He sold large quantities of the former to the publishers of other magazines, for use in their subscription campaigns, and was even more successful with the latter among private schools and some public ones throughout the country. One of two recent novels had sold over the hundred thousand mark, and the general standing of the Chandler B. Corey publications had improved. It was conceded in the trade they had now a better "line." Something was being done, too, in the Mail Order Department, in charge of Walt Chase, and more and more sets of standard works were being sold by circularizing methods.

The installation and operation of their own presses had been a grave undertaking. Mr. Kipps had strenuously opposed it, arguing that the new building was enough of a responsibility, and that they should mark time for a while and see how they stood, rather than incur a new loan of half a million dollars which the new presses involved. Mr. Corey was convinced, however, that a tide had arrived in their affairs which demanded a rapid expansion of the business, and if he and his partners were to make the most of the opportunity thus presented, they must rise to the occasion, and show themselves able to expand with it.

"There's no use of our trying to crowd back into our shells after we've outgrown them, is there, Miss Sturgis?" he said to his secretary, with an amused twinkle in his eye, after a heated conference with the other members of the firm, during which Kipps in high dudgeon had left the room.

Jeannette smiled wisely. She believed that her chief was one of those few men who had far-seeing vision, and could look with keen perception and unflinching eye into the future, and that he would carry Mr. Kipps, Mr. Featherstone, the office, his family, herself, everybody who attached themselves to him, to fame and fortune in spite of anything any one of them might do. When he was right, he knew it, and knew it with conviction, and nothing could shake him.

He had only one weakness, his secretary felt, and that was his attitude toward his son, Willis, who, two years before, had been withdrawn from the intellectual atmosphere of Cambridge, and put into the business, presumably that his father might watch him. He was one of the sub-editors of Corey's Commentary and demoralized the office by his late hours, his disregard of office rules against smoking, and his condescending attitude toward everyone in his father's employ.

The three years that Jeannette Sturgis had been Mr. Corey's secretary had seen many changes. Poor Mrs. Inness had turned out to be a dipsomaniac. Jeannette guessed her secret long before it was discovered by anyone else, and she had been full of pity and sorrow when this gray-haired, regal woman had to be dismissed. Van Alstyne was gone, and Humphrey Stubbs as well; Max Oppenheim likewise had departed. The new Circulation Manager was a shrewd, keen-eyed, spectacled young Scotchman, named MacGregor, whom everyone familiarly spoke to and of as "Sandy." Miss Holland was still Mr. Kipps' assistant, and now most of the routine affairs of the business were administered by her. Besides Mr. Holme, there was another new member of the firm, Sidney Frank Allister, who had come into the Chandler B. Corey Company from a rival house, and was now entrusted with the book-publishing end of the business. It was usually his opinion that decided the fate of a manuscript. He had his assistants: a haughty Radcliffe graduate, named Miss Pecknough, whom Jeannette heartily disliked, and old Major Ticknor, who had a stiff leg since his Civil War days, and who stomped into the office two or three times a week with his bundle of manuscripts and stomped out again with a fresh supply. Very rarely Mr. Corey was consulted; he frankly declared he hated to read a book, and would do so under the most vigorous pressure.

"Do I have to read this, Frank?" Jeannette would often hear him ask Allister, when the latter brought him a bulky manuscript and laid it on his desk. "You know, I don't know anything about literature," he would add, smilingly, with his favorite assumption of being only a plain business man and lacking in appreciation of the arts.

The Old-Fashioned Girl

By SOPHIE IRENE LOEB

A YOUNG woman writes me complaining of her loneliness. She says:

SOPHIE IRENE LOEB

"I wish you would tell me if I am an old-fashioned girl. I don't seem to find young people that are congenial. They seem to avoid me. Leastwise I am not fond of frivolous things, and somehow I am always expected to remain at home with the old folks. Although I am not what you call pretty, I do not think any one would consider me ugly."

"At times I am so blue and lonely that I do not know what to do. Life does not seem worth while living. I go to business, come home and go out very little. If I am old-fashioned, what can I do to change myself?"

I would say to this girl as I have said many times. The one thing to do is to quit thinking about yourself and how lonely you are. Don't stay at home, and make it your business to meet young people.

It doesn't matter whether you have a pretty face or not, or whether you are even what might be termed attractive. The main thing is, if you have a desire to be friendly, and if you will really follow that inclination you will find many in like situation who will be glad to meet you more than half way.

Many, many letters have come to me like this one, and the big question that seems to be uppermost is, where can I meet young people who will interest me? How will I go about it?

There are many girl organizations in the city where there are gymnasiums, reading classes, concerts and social meetings of all kinds.

Among these might be mentioned the various Young Women's Christian Associations and the Young Women's Hebrew Associations, or other religious organizations, to say nothing of the large number of societies where young people get together.

Not only this, but, in the course of your own meeting with those about you in your work, if you would cultivate friends, not yourself out to be somewhat pleasant, you will always find response. Hunt up your old friends that you have known and visit them. You do not know when you will find somebody there that might be an agreeable companion.

The important point is not to think about yourself. To do this you cannot help with the old folks all the time. Many young people write me that even when they are with young people they are embarrassed and fear to talk.

This is because they are thinking too much of themselves and how they will impress others. This being the case they are awkward and say the wrong thing. The way to overcome this is not to say anything until some subject comes up that you know something about and then you can talk on it without thinking of yourself or how it will affect the others. Pretty soon you will think only of your subject and the topic will become interesting to the others.

Many avenues of comradeship are open to those who seek it. They have to put themselves out to find them.

The oven of the gas range will heat much quicker if the door is left open a minute after the gas is lighted.

MEDITATIONS

—OF A— MARRIED WOMAN

By HELEN ROWLAND

LITTLE BOYS.

LITTLE BOYS!

Little boys, with red, red lips and wild-rose velvet cheeks, so soft to smooth and so tempting to kiss.

Little boys with hair of pale gold silk and teeth like grains of rice and long, dark lashes over wide, shining baby-eyes.

Little boys that wind fat, sturdy arms, or frail, tender arms around your neck and wet your cheek with fresh young tears.

Who could BELIEVE that they would ever grow up to be snappy real estate salesmen with keen eyes and glib tongues and a florid line of talk?

Or prize fighters with bulging muscles and iron fists and a deadly punch?

Or fat butchers slicing sausages and weighing out hams?

Or sleek brokers in high, hard collars, with thin smiles, and hard eyes like lances?

Or cool-blooded lawyers weighing evidence, or cool-headed doctors cutting out tonsils and appendices?

Or huge policemen bellowing at motorists and arresting criminals?

Or moving-picture actors with marcelled hair, or brawny football players with chrysanthemum heads and broken jaws and all that?

To be Tired Business Men sneaking off to ball games, swearing at golf sticks, shooting deer and watching beauty choruses?

To be selfish, cynical old bachelors and dyspeptic woman-haters?

To be grouchy husbands, henpecked husbands, overworked husbands, side-stepping husbands, brow-beaten husbands?

To be black-face comedians, janitors, efficiency experts, bootleggers, clubmen, scowflaws, politicians, haughty hat-check kings, cynical elevator men, genial traveling salesmen, poker players, income-tax dodgers, reformers, girl-chasers, bigamists, heroes, taxi-drivers?

To be rough-cheeked, deep-voiced, bald-headed, strong-armed powerful He-Men—instead of tender, beautiful ethereal creatures with angels' wings?

And yet—that's what little boys DO grow up to be, ISN'T IT?

And what little girls plan to grow up and MARRY?

But why does Nature make little boys so soft and dimpled and pink-and-white and helpless and trustful and kissable? wonder!

Just to fool us?

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

A Silence.

If the buzz of the electric fan proves annoying, stand the fan on a magazine or a newspaper and the noise will cease.

The Cause of Strong Mutton.

The thin skin that comes next to the fat of mutton should be removed before cooking, as this is what gives the meat that strong, disagreeable flavor.

Two Good Methods.

A good memory and pencil and paper are fine methods of getting the needed kitchen supplies—but perhaps pencil and paper are more reliable.

Soap 'Em.

If screws are soaped with kitchen soap before they are forced into hard wood, they will enter quite easily and will be just as readily removed.

Easy Cleaning.

Cover the silver mesh bag with buttermilk and let stand overnight. In the morning rinse in lukewarm water and dry thoroughly with a soft towel.

Mrs. Eliza James, who owns the largest watercress farm in England, is known as the "Watercress Queen."

Philosophical Phrasings

The man who has really tried has at least succeeded at a point where most failures begin.

The only way that the desire for affection can really be satisfied is by giving it rather than by receiving it.

A generous soul is sunshine to the mind.

When a man loses his health, then he begins to take care of it.

Success comes when a man has something to do and does it.

Eggs in Tomato Cups.

WHEN fresh tomatoes are in season an attractive way of serving eggs is to cook them in tomato cups, suggests the United States Department of Agriculture.

Select the desired number of good-sized tomatoes, allowing one to each person. Cut off the blossom end, scoop out the seeds, and stand the tomatoes in a baking pan in the oven until they are partly cooked. Put a teaspoon of butter and a dusting of salt and pepper into the bottom of each and break 1 egg. Place in the oven until the eggs are "set" to the desired hardness. Have ready a round of toasted bread well buttered, and place each tomato in the center of a round of toast. Serve hot.

We may thin the product, but if we transplant this early first crop to head it and the weather should turn cold, the crop will be delayed and the lettuce may not do well. So it is a good idea just to use the leaves as they mature and wait for the second, or even third planting before trying to head up the lettuce.

Different kinds of lettuce must be selected for the various seasons as the hardy spring variety will not be satisfactory in midsummer. The different varieties require more or less room to head according to their kind. The Big Boston, New York and Iceberg require 12 inches per plant, while the Tom Thumb variety needs but half that amount of space. Loosely-heading lettuce is apt to be more tender in quality. The cabbage-heading sort usually has thicker midribs and at times, if allowed to grow and mature too fully, it becomes a little bitter at the heart. It is also difficult to separate the tightly-folded lettuce perfectly except in the case of the Chinese cabbage lettuce, which is the tenderest and most delicately-flavored variety that comes to our market.

The Cos lettuce or Romaine likes cold weather conditions. It should be tied up to bleach the inside nicely. All the large lettuce leaves may be cooked as vegetables, so nothing need be wasted. The witloof or French chicory is another lettuce that likes cool conditions and that must be tied to bleach the centers of the heads. The roots of this variety are sturdy and the growth rank. The rows must be sowed at least two feet apart and the weeds must be kept up to that late in the fall that a good supply to gather in the winter use.

Lack of moisture or too much will diminish the lettuce crop, less we are prepared to well night and morning, gardeners favor a light dressing of soda every 10 days before watering the beds. It is supposed to aid in keeping leaves sweet tasting, and which makes them salt for salad use.

Another lettuce for late fall and fall gathering is the leaved escarole, broad-leaved tavian or endive, as it is called. The inner leaves are a deep, creamy white and tender, with a piquant flavor. They make a delicious combined with peppers with the popular cheese dressing. The more strongly flavored lettuces are always welcome in weather.

"Whisper and I Shall Hear"

LOVE usually does not shout and clamor. Love is timid and afraid. It speaks—what use are words? One might as well try to explain a delicate musical fantasy as try to voice the beatings of the heart. But eyes speak the language of the soul and in a glance may reveal even more than all the Dantes and Miltons and Shakespeares could phrase.

There is a time, however, when a word—just one—must be spoken. Just asked her the most wonderful of all questions and she answered: "Whisper and I shall hear." "Whisper and I shall hear," she said to me—alone—but, first, you must speak!

Do You Know All the Joys of a Lettuce Crop?

THE fun of owning your own lettuce bed is to be just as extravagant in its use as you wish to be. Let hearts of lettuce be your everyday treat instead of an extra treat at a near-prohibitive price. To enjoy this wild extravagance, the crops must be planned every week or 10 days from the last of March to the first of August. The last crop may have to be cared for much the same as the first, but it is worth the trouble.

When the ground, prepared the fall before, becomes the least bit workable, the equinox past, begin operations. Pulverize the earth and spread the seeds thinly, not more than a half inch below the surface. If the earth is not sticky, tread the rows lightly after planting. Next, drive four rows and cover the bed with burlap until the plants begin to germinate and the leaves poke through the ground. If the weather is not treacherous, we may uncover the bed for two hours in the middle of the day, but cover it again before night.

We may thin the product, but if we transplant this early first crop to head it and the weather should turn cold, the crop will be delayed and the lettuce may not do well. So it is a good idea just to use the leaves as they mature and wait for the second, or even third planting before trying to head up the lettuce.

Different kinds of lettuce must be selected for the various seasons as the hardy spring variety will not be satisfactory in midsummer. The different varieties require more or less room to head according to their kind. The Big Boston, New York and Iceberg require 12 inches per plant, while the Tom Thumb variety needs but half that amount of space. Loosely-heading lettuce is apt to be more tender in quality. The cabbage-heading sort usually has thicker midribs and at times, if allowed to grow and mature too fully, it becomes a little bitter at the heart. It is also difficult to separate the tightly-folded lettuce perfectly except in the case of the Chinese cabbage lettuce, which is the tenderest and most delicately-flavored variety that comes to our market.

The Cos lettuce or Romaine likes cold weather conditions. It should be tied up to bleach the inside nicely. All the large lettuce leaves may be cooked as vegetables, so nothing need be wasted. The witloof or French chicory is another lettuce that likes cool conditions and that must be tied to bleach the centers of the heads. The roots of this variety are sturdy and the growth rank. The rows must be sowed at least two feet apart and

Lack of moisture or too much will diminish the lettuce crop, less we are prepared to well night and morning, gardeners favor a light dressing of soda every 10 days before watering the beds. It is supposed to aid in keeping leaves sweet tasting, and which makes them salt for salad use.

Another lettuce for late fall and fall gathering is the leaved escarole, broad-leaved tavian or endive, as it is called. The inner leaves are a deep, creamy white and tender, with a piquant flavor. They make a delicious combined with peppers with the popular cheese dressing. The more strongly flavored lettuces are always welcome in weather.

MAKING LIFE USEFUL

By WM. A. MCKEEVER

Lecturer and Authority on Educational and Sociological Subjects.

IN the picturesque mountain regions of Kentucky I have found a man who has derived a peculiar philosophy of industry, and who is applying it to the growing generation. He inspires the families to teach the boys to make looms and the girls to learn to use these in weaving.

From this scheme of family co-operation, he is developing a new mountain industry, that of weaving beautiful fabrics for the market. Thus a new factor in household thrift is being introduced.

As a means of inspiring the mountain dwellers to take up the new work, my philosopher friend issues leaflets of instruction and guidance, and he intersperses these with timely maxims. For example:

"The church and the school cannot make a people without a sustaining industry for the young learning generation."

"It is better for the mountain boy to make a hand loom for his sister than to make moonshine for his neighbor."

"The best gift for any boy is enough work to do so that he can buy his own toys and other instruments of play."

"Teach a girl to work with her mother, moderately and happily, and she will later become a congenial factor in her own household."

"A piano soon gets out of tune in the mountain regions, but a good hand loom will hum a merry tune indefinitely."

Not long is my mountain friend doing a splendid thing for the boys and girls of his Kentucky region, but he is setting a valuable example to other men. Why should not every business man become something of a philosopher of childhood and youth?

To be watchful of the young, to think and scheme as to their moral and manners and general behavior—the adult mind which runs in such channels gives assurance of a person who is himself honest and righteous in his reactions.

The lesson for us business and professional men is plain. Study childhood, observe youth, become interested in their needs, contribute to their growth and learning, assist them to acquire habits of industry and thrift, visualize their possible unfoldment into men and women of highest qualities of mind and heart.

Creamed Codfish Patties.

Poach two thick codfish steaks in hot water. When they are done but not broken, lift them with a skimmer to a dish and let them stand to cool slightly, then free them from skin and bone and flake them. Have ready a good rich cream sauce. Add to it a hard-boiled egg put through the ricer and a quarter cupful of washed and drained capers. Add the fish. Have ready as many hot patty shells as are needed. When ready to serve, place the shells on hot plates, fill them with the creamed fish and put on the tiny tops. Garnish them with sprays of parsley and stuffed olives.

THE WOMAN OF IT

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

MAXIMS OF A MODERN MAID.

A MAN may just possibly love a wife who is his senior; there is a chance that he may care for one whose wealth is greater than his; but if she's both older and richer—it's all over but the arsenic!

When a nice, modest girl has worked hard trying to convince a young man that she takes no special interest in him, it's awfully discouraging not to have him call her bluff.

Some wives with the "Yes, dear," habit are meek—and some merely have discovered that if they SAY what pleases HIM they may DO what pleases THEM.

"So far as I can see," remarked the elderly flirt, "the only difference between spooning and petting is that the former used to be done on the family sofa and the latter takes place on the back seat of the family car."

Why a wife grows old faster than her husband, because he tells her that if she bobs her hair he's THROUGH!

Of course, a girl cannot be sure that there are many hidden good qualities in the dissipated youth who takes her to ride in his expensive car—but she's usually willing to investigate for herself!

When a divorcee has her ex-spouse locked up for not paying his alimony it's perfectly true that he can't earn any money for her in jail—but neither can he earn it for any other woman.

FAMOUS WOMEN

Catherine of Russia

TO rise from the station of a peasant girl to that of Empress is the romantic dream of perhaps millions of peasant girls and has been for centuries. It is only once in a thousand years, however, that such a dream comes true. It did come true in the case of Catherine of Russia, who died May 17, 1797. She was the daughter of a peasant of Livonia, who married a Swedish Dragoon. The latter was killed in battle on the day of his wedding. Catherine came to the attention of the Russian General, Bauer, who made her his mistress. Then, one day, along came Prince Montschikoff and was at once captivated by her. She transferred her affections to him; thus rising another step. All this happened before her seventeenth year. When she had nearly reached the age of 17, Peter the Great, Emperor of Russia, made her his mistress. Later he married her and presented her with the diadem and scepter. After his death she was proclaimed Empress of all the Russias and showed herself worthy of her fortune.

To remove white spots from the table, soak a piece of flannel in linseed oil and place it over the white spot. Any oil used for polishing automobiles will do. Let it remain for several hours and if necessary apply more oil to the cloth. If spots are bad it may take a day or two to restore the original polish.

To whip cream that would not thicken, add three or four drops of lemon juice and you will get firm cream.

The Mistake That Chatterer Made

Who makes mistakes must always pay; He'll find there is no other way.

—Chatterer the Red Squirrel.

Black Pussy had settled herself comfortably close to the hole.

EVEN the cleverest, the smartest, the quickest thinkers sometimes makes mistakes. Chatterer the Red Squirrel prides himself on being smart. If you could get him to talk to you he probably would tell you that no one in the Green Forest is smarter than he. In fact he would, I suspect, boast that he is the smartest of all the little people in the Green Forest, for Chatterer is a hoaster. Of course, he isn't the smartest, but he is smart.

Now, Chatterer had very carefully laid his plans for getting a supply of fresh eggs from the feathered folk of the Old Orchard. First, he had found out where the nests were. He had spied on his feathered neighbors until he had discovered their secrets. All the time he had taken the greatest care that no one should see him and so have suspicions awakened. At last the time had arrived to steal his first breakfast of eggs. From his hiding place in the old stonewall he had seen Mrs. Flicker leave her nest in the trunk of the nearest apple tree. He knew she had gone to get her breakfast. He was sure there would be time for him to get all those eggs and get back to his hiding place before she returned.

When Chatterer went up the trunk of that tree he went up in a hurry. People engaged in mischief usually are in a hurry. When he reached the round hole which was the doorway to the Flicker home he didn't pause. He was so greedy for those eggs he was sure he would find down inside that he just darted right inside without pausing.

Such a surprise as Chatterer received! It wasn't a pleasant surprise. Oh my, no! It was anything but a pleasant surprise. Something hard and sharp struck him, and made him squeal with pain. It struck him again as he frantically twisted about to get out of that doorway. It struck him a third and a fourth time before he was out. Each time it made him squeal.

He had gone in through that doorway in a hurry, but he came out in a much greater hurry. In fact he came out in such a hurry that he didn't even try to run down the trunk of the tree. He jumped, and then made for the old stone wall as fast as his legs could take him. After him came Mrs. Flicker. Sammy Jay, who had been watching Black Pussy from the top of a nearby tree, heard the noise and turned in time to see Chatterer running as hard as he could run, with Mrs. Flicker after him.

Sammy and Chatterer are not the best of friends. Sammy guessed right away what had happened. "Thief! Thief! Thief!" he screamed, flying over to a young tree growing close to the old stone wall. He was just in time to see Chatterer disappear between two stones. "Thief! Thief! Thief!" shrieked Sammy. All the other birds in the Old Orchard came hurrying over to see what the fuss was about. Mrs. Flicker told them what had happened. Such a scolding and chattering as there was then!

Down under the stones of the old wall Chatterer heard it all. His coat was torn and he ached and smarted. And he was in a terrible rage. He felt that he had been cheated out of that breakfast of fresh eggs he had counted on to say nothing of the fright and pain he had suffered. And he knew it was all because he had made a mistake. He had made the mistake of going headlong into Mrs. Flicker's home without making sure that no one was in there. He, who thought himself smart, had done one of the stupidest and most foolish things that any one could do, and he knew it.

ANOTHER SUSPECT BEING SOUGHT FOR THE MURDER OF MOLLIE MARGULIS

Garage Owner Describes Man He Saw at Roadhouse on Night of Killing, Quarreling With Girl Resembling Pictures of Slain Young Woman.

DROVE AUTO WITH WIRE WHEELS

Missing Pay Check Not Yet Received Back by Company—Coroner's Inquest Scheduled to Begin Tomorrow Morning.

A tall, slender man with wavy and somewhat kinky dark hair, bushy eyebrows and prominent nose, who speaks imperfect English and who drives a Dodge roadster with wire wheels, is being sought by the police in the investigation of the murder of Mollie Margulis, criminally assaulted and choked to death a week ago last night, and found in a rear yard near Gamble Playground.

Paul J. Maurer, garage proprietor at 4536 Pope avenue, reiterated to police officials, at the North Market Street Station last night, that he saw and heard such a man and a young woman whom he believed to have been Miss Margulis quarreling in Hobarth's roadhouse, on Riverview Drive, on the night of the murder.

Identifies Photograph. From viewing photographs of the murdered girl, Maurer says he is firmly convinced that he saw the same person he saw at the roadhouse, from 9:20 to 10:10 o'clock on that Thursday night.

Maurer said he watched the two rather closely, because it was evident they were quarreling. Some of their conversation, he said, seemed to be in imperfect English, and some in a language which he took to be Yiddish. They were still quarreling when they left the place at 10:10, in the wire-wheel car.

The man described by Maurer was not the suspect now held in the city hospital observation ward, a former policeman, about whom the inquiry has chiefly centered up to this time. If Maurer's story, which the police are trying to follow up, should lead to any definite conclusion, the result would probably be to free the former policeman of suspicion.

Progress of Inquiry.

Thus far, the investigation directed at the former policeman, which has been as thorough as the police can make it, has shown that he is untruthful and of vicious tendencies and practices, but it has not shown evidence which would lead him for this particular crime. After Maurer first told the police of his belief that he saw Miss Margulis at Hobarth's roadhouse on the night of the murder, police investigators and Post-Dispatch reporters visited the roadhouse, four miles north of Baden, and talked with the proprietor, Joseph Hobarth. He remembered, not so much the two visitors described by Maurer, as a party of four, two young men and two young women, who he said were at his place that night, and who arrived and departed in a Ford car with the name of a commercial firm printed upon both sides and a large box at the rear intended for business uses. Hobarth said the young man returned Saturday night with two girls, but he could not say whether they were the same girls as on Thursday night.

This car was traced, and the two young men were found yesterday, who admitted to the police that they were at Hobarth's Saturday night with two young women, and that they had been there previous nights, sometimes with girls they had "picked up," and whom they knew only by first names. But both the young men denied that they were at the roadhouse on the Thursday night in question.

Young Men Released. The two young men were taken to the North Market Street Station and Hobarth repeated, in their presence, his statement that they had been at the roadhouse on the night in question. They continued to deny this. But when Maurer showed them, he said he did not recognize either of them as the man who was with the woman he believed to have been Miss Margulis. Continued on Page 3, Column 4.
